TORPEDO BRITISH CRUISER --- 650 ABOARD

BERLIN, Nov. 28 (INS)—A heavy British cruiser of the London class has been torpedoed and sunk by Lieut.-Commander Gunther Prien, who sank the British battleship Royal Oak, the German high command announced in an official communique today.

The cruiser was sunk, the announcement said, east of the Shetland Islands and north of Scotland, where German aircraft have been active in recent weeks.

The Royal Oak was sent to the bottom by two torpedoes from Prien's U-boat in the harbor of Scapa Flow, the chief naval concentration base in the Orkney Islands.

There are four British cruisers of the London class—the Devonshire, the London, the Shropshire and the Sussex. All were built in 1927 or 1928, displace approximately 9,750 tons each and carry complements of 650 men. They are approximately 633 feet in length over all, with a beam of 66 feet and a draught of 17 feet.

Their armament includes eight 8-inch guns, four 4-inch guns, four 3-inch guns, sixteen smaller weapons, eight 21-inch torpedo tubes and each carries a single airplane equipped with catapult apparatus.

'Things Are Too Hot' Deputy Quotes Dowd

"Things are getting too hot."

A short while after John F. Dowd, ex-sheriff, said those words to James Morris, deputy sheriff in charge of Charles st. jail, he wrote out and handed Morris his resignation.

There's an Offspring in the Offing

STORK'S FLAPPIN'— Hal Kemp, orchestra leader, and his wife, the former Martha Stephenson, society glamour girl, are said to be expecting Ol' Doc Stork to present them with an heir along about next March. A query to the parties concerned brought neither affirmation nor denial.

ROMEO PLANS COUP IN JULIET SEARCH

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—A new legal move—with a strong dash of love in it—was planned today by Manhattan's bewildered modern Romeo, George "Looking-for-the-Girl" Lowther, 3d, as he continued his determined search for his mysteriously missing Juliet, Miss Eileen Herrick.

George's lawyer, Atty. E. L. Johnson, conferred for the second time in 48 hours with Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel.

But nothing came out of the meeting but a hint that the majesty of the law had passed the buck to love's tender passion in the Lowther-Herrick romance.

HUNTS FOR HIS JULIET

Definitely in the discard was prospect of a contempt citation being issued against Eileen "Juliet" Herrick's dad, former Park Commissioner, Walter R. Herrick, for his alleged failure to obey Judge Wasservogel's order that the sweethearts be allowed to meet at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Instead of taking his Juliet in his arms, at the New York rest hospital where she was supposed to have been staying, young Lowther discovered she had been "spirited" away to an unannounced Long Island hideout.

He's been hunting for her ever since.

And this time he can't bring her parents into court by habeas corpus writ as he did before, because now there's no evidence the missing girl is either at home or with relatives.

CUPID PLANS A COUP

Love may laugh at locksmiths in the copy books, but Long Island doors blocked by frozen-faced butlers certainly had obeyed "Dan Cupid" Lowther, 3d, running in circles today.

Said Atty. Johnson:

"The judge and I agreed opportunely ought to be given these young people to find each other and get married, if they want to.

"But I will say, at this time, that I am planning a new move on Mr. Lowther's behalf. I think it's a move that will surprise certain people. There's a lot of law in it—and a dash of love.

"The two angles, together, ought to make it effective."

Mother Wins School Fight

Mothers of nine kindergarten children today won their fight to continue sending their children to Bowen elementary school in the Thompsonville section, Newton.

Julius E. Warren, superintendent of schools, announced the decision to maintain the small kindergarten class was taken after a hearing of more than 50 residents last night. Recent proposals to transfer the class to the Rice school evoked a storm of protest from the nine mothers, who threatened a "strike." The change was proposed for economic reasons, school officials said.

CUPID'S ARROW SHARPER

Boston is having a banner year for romance, it was revealed today in records at city hall. Already, 7943 couples have filed marriage intentions—an increase of 1125 over last year.

That was on Friday, Nov. 10, the day on which the Boston Evening American carried an exclusive story of conditions in Suffolk County which led to an investigation of job-selling and alleged graft.

So said Morris today as he was called before the grand jury which has already indicted Dowd and four others in job-selling charges in 60 counts of collecting from employees who wanted to keep their jobs.

FOR DELIVERY NOV. 13

When Dowd gave him the resignation, Morris said, he told him to

WHERE IS DOWD?

8th Day of the Search carry it to the governor's office on the following Monday morning, Nov. 13. The next day Dowd was picked up unconscious in a New York at with $5290 in his pockets.

"I told him," Morris said today, "that if all the things they were saying about him were true he had better resign. That was after he said things were getting too hot.

"He didn't say anything, but a little while later he handed me the resignation and said, 'You deliver this Monday morning to the governor's office.'"

Details of the dramatic scene at the jail in the minutes preceding the resignation and how the jail was conducted during Dowd's 13 months in office were described by Morris.

ALL RECORD DESTROYED

He said that all receipts for food and other supplies and all records of deliveries had been destroyed before Dowd sat down to write out the words by which he quit his post while under fire.

He said that all such receipts and slips were never given to him. Dowd handled such matters, he added.

He said there never was any check on weights of food delivered. As he told his story to Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle he was asked:

" weren't you oen of the men referred to by Dowd in his campaign speeches?"

"Yes," said Morris, "I was one of the four men he said he would fire the minute he took office. I was the most surprised man down there when I wasn't fired."

DENIES PAYING BRIBE

Morris denied that he ever paid to hold his job as a deputy sheriff. Deputy Sheriff Harry I. Timity.

His mother still unheard from, "Little Boy Blue," who was bestowed upon the South End police by a lodging house proprietress, today became the subject of a preliminary study by City Hospital social workers.

BULLETIN

The mother of "Little Boy Blue" was identified by police today as Mrs. Mildred Sullivan of Boston. She was found after officers had compared the baby's footprints with those of the child born in the hospital Nov. 10.

baby with Mrs. MacFarlane in order to find a room. The girl had mentioned her husband as "Edward," but nothing has been heard from him, either, police say.

If no parent claims the child, a social worker, sworn to secrecy, will place him in a home.

He will never know the circumstances of his adventure, or how he lost his mother and father.

POLICE HUNT 'MYSTERY MAN' IN R. I. WIRETAPPING PROBE

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Nov. 28.—Statewide search was begun today for a mystery man in a high powered auto, a man wanted for questioning in connection with a newly revealed wire-tapping scheme which allegedly allowed outsiders to listen in on Mayor Thomas P. McCoy's home telephone.

The mayor, a dominant figure in Blackstone Valley politics, heads one of the State's few remaining Democratic party strongholds.

CLAIM WIFE FOUND

The McCoy administration is now under investigation by Republican Governor William H. Vanderbilt.

The alleged tapping of the mayor's telephone was revealed after police had swooped down on the home of Edward L. Freeman, socialist Republican and printing firm head.

In a dramatic raid, Pawtucket officers, headed by Chief Leonard Mills, surrounded the Freeman residence in swanky Sayles ave., halted all persons attempting to go in or out, and finally searched the house and took Freeman to police headquarters for questioning.

He allegedly admitted having allowed an "investigator" to use a bedroom of his home, for the supposed wiretapping.

HUNT MAN IN AUTO

Police said they found a wire running 300 yards from just outside the mayor's home, in East ave., to the Freeman residence in Sayles ave.

The wire was connected with the mayor's telephone line, between street and house, on that end, and with a listening device and what appeared to be a dictograph socket at the Freeman home, investigators claimed.

After Freeman had been questioned for several hours, search for the man in the highpowered auto was officially launched.

The man was named and the auto described in a broadcast sent out by radio and teletype from police headquarters.

Last known address of the man was given as a Providence hotel. His auto was purchased in Washington, D. C., according to police.

Miss Elizabeth Freeman, daughter of Edward L. Freeman questioned by police, told newspapermen the "mystery man" in the expensive auto had been a guest of her father.

MAJOR WATCHES RAID

She said she didn't know the man's business occupation or his home address. Last she saw of him, she said, he left the house last night saying he was going to a show which he named.

Mayor McCoy viewed the police raid on the Freeman home from a distance.

The mayor said he had suspected tapping of his home telephone for several weeks.

"Last Friday, I notified the telephone company and asked them to investigate," he said.

James A. Williams, district manager of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co., said:

"We were asked to check up Mayor McCoy's line for a possible tap. We found such a tap connected to the outside line of the mayor's telephone. This tap led to a residence in Sayles ave."

Tell of Raids By Police on Lodging House

As witnesses were called today in the suit brought by Mrs. Anna L. Bauer against Police Commissioner Timilty to keep police from paying unwelcome visits to her home at 557 Massachusetts ave., principals in the case awaited possible action by Suffolk Superior Court Judge Thomas H. Dowd.

Judge Dowd, after hearing Mrs. Bauer's testimony that she ran a "straight lodging house," indicated a belief that the affair seemed more of a neighborhood quarrel than a police matter.

Mrs. Bauer asserted that the police searched her home without a warrant.

Following her testimony, Mrs. Jennie Daniels, who conducts a lodging house next door, said she was often bothered by men calling at her door, "thinking it was Mrs. Bauer's."

Questioned as to why she once complained to the board of health against Mrs. Bauer, Mrs. Daniels testified:

"Because she had too many cats, that's why. She had about 17 cats and they were always coming over to my house."

U. S. Given Pair Seized in Raids

Arrested by Boston and Brookline police, who also seized heroin and hypodermic needles valued at $3000, two men said to be agents of a New York dope ring were turned over to Federal authorities today.

Charles E. Hoyt, 43, of Pearl st., Newton, was arrested after being trailed for five weeks by officers of the headquarters narcotic squad.

Later the Brookline police, in a chase arrested Edward M. Hayes, 37, of Aspinwall ave., and charged him with possession of hypodermic needles. Hayes fell down an elevator shaft trying to get away, but was not seriously hurt.

Hoyt maintained two apartments, police said, and treated the drug with a chemical to make three times the usual quantity.

The half-way mark in the Red Cross drive for 100,000 members and increased funds was reached today.

Gov. Saltonstall marked the achievement of 50,000 members, by painting off two red blocks on the huge Red Cross chart on Boston Common.

Duff Cooper in Hub, Says Hitler Fears London Raid

Hitler is afraid to bomb London, Sir Alfred Duff Cooper, D. S. O., M. P., former first lord of the British admiralty said on his arrival here today on a lecture tour.

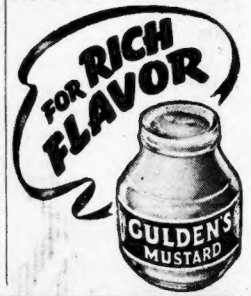

"I don't believe Germany will resort to such action," he said, "first, because of the fear of retaliation, if he should do it now; and later, if Hitler should try it in desperation, I believe he wouldn't dare because of the effects it would have on future peace terms."

He said Hitler's claim that the Versailles treaty caused the present war is so much "losh," that actually what caused the war was the fact that Germany carried on the last World War for four and one-half years after she had lost it at the first battle of the Marne in 1914.

The German navy is more superior to the Germans in this war than in the last and, as to air raids on the British fleet, Duff Cooper said he did not believe that planes could hurt battleships.

He said proof of this was the fact that British planes scored direct bomb hits on the Deutschland in the raid on Wilhelmshaven, but that she was still able to escape under her own steam. He expressed the belief that internal dissension and the British blockade will force Hitler to seek peace.

Felix Forte Named To Judge Gray Post

Special Justice Felix Forte of the Somerville district court was appointed today to fill the Superior Court vacancy caused by the death of Judge Wilford D. Gray.

Rep. Philip Sherman of Somerville was named by Governor Saltonstall to fill Forte's post on the district court bench.

FIVE JUSTICES NAMED

The two were outstanding judicial appointments throughout the state. Four others were:

James A. Boyle of Tisbury to be special justice of the Dukes County district court, vice Henry L. Murphy, resigned.

F. Anthony Hanlon of Adams to be special justice of the fourth district court of Berkshire County, vice John N. Alberti, resigned.

Morton C. Jaquith of 77 High st., Clinton, to be special justice of the second district court of Eastern Worcester, vice George O'Toole, resigned.

Harry D. Penan of Fitchburg to be special justice of the district court of Winchendon, vice Joseph E. White, resigned.

It is mandatory under the law that their appointments must wait a week for approval by the Governor's council.

PASSED BAR AT 21

Forte has been practicing law since 1916. He was the youngest man ever to pass the bar examinations when he was admitted to practice at the age of 21.

REP. PHILIP SHERMAN
Named for Judgeship

He was born June 30, 1895, and was educated at Boston Latin and English high schools. He then attended Emerson College of Oratory, Northeastern University and was graduated from Boston University law school in 1916 with honors. The following year he won his master's degree in law.

Later he was given the highest degree awarded by Harvard law school, doctor of judicial science.

He now lives in Belmont and this year was appointed by the Governor as a member of the special commission investigating pardons and paroles. Three years ago he was the unsuccessful candidate for attorney-general.

FRIEND SUCCEEDS HIM

Sherman has been a close political associate of Forte.

He has been an assistant Republican floor leader and is at present chairman of the House judiciary committee. He was the unsuccessful candidate for mayor of Somerville in 1937, a which time Forte's political organization announced its support for him.

He was active in the "Landon for President" campaign and also active in the Saltonstall campaign. In 1938 he was elected head of the Somerville Bar Association. He is a graduate of Boston University law school.

OTHER APPOINTMENTS

The Governor also appointed one new medical examiner, reappointed two others and named a new associate medical examiner.

These included:

Karl E. Richardson of Franklin, present associate medical examiner of the sixth district, Norfolk County, as medical examiner to succeed Francis A. Bragg, whose term expired.

James J. Putnam of Foxboro as associate medical examiner of Norfolk sixth district to succeed Richardson.

George G. Bailey of Ipswich, reappointed medical examiner of the second district, Essex County.

Ernest F. Curry of Bourne, reappointed medical examiner of the second district, Barnstable County.

Ernest H. Rosasco of North Adams, a graduate of Williams College, and Joseph B. Kirby of Sheffield, were named masters in chancery.

Frederick B. Hobart of 79 Garfield ave., Chelsea, a graduate of Northeastern University and a member of the Massachusetts bar, to be master in chancery, vice Abraham Zinbale, term expired.

Noah M. Gediman of Falmouth, to be public administrator, vice John P. Sylvia, Jr., term expired.

BARS CITY TAX ON CIG MACHINES

The city of Boston, it appears, will levy no tax on cigarette vending machines if Mayor Tobin has his way.

For the second time the mayor today returned and disapproved an ordinance adopted by the city council calling for a license fee on the machines.

On June 5, this year, the mayor disapproved a similar ordinance, except at that time the council had set $29 as the fee—this was for $5.

"If the fee was set at $5 I would approve the order," the mayor said in June. Today he said:

"The situation has changed since June. Since then the Legislature has passed an act taxing cigarettes and providing for the licensing of vending machines.

"I think the sale of cigarettes is sufficiently controlled by that without the city adding another burden by demanding a license fee."

Volunteers to Give Away 350 Baskets

William H. Taylor, chairman of the board of directors of the Volunteers of America, today announced that 350 Thanksgiving baskets will be distributed to needy families and a Thanksgiving dinner given to 1000 unemployed men over the holidays.

The dinner to the unemployed will be served Thursday at the penny lunch room, Hanover st. Baskets will be distributed from 31 Tremont st. on Wednesday.

MAINE HUNTER KILLED

BETHEL, Me., Nov. 28.—In an attempt to boost himself into a tree from which he frequently watched for deer, David Kirk, 16, accidentally killed himself with buckshot from his own shotgun. His father, Robert, found the boy beneath the tree. David died a short time later.

Doctors strove today to save the infected left foot of Donald Smith, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith of Clifton, who for four days concealed a wound suffered after he had borrowed his father's shotgun.

Though the wound had given him great pain, the boy, who is a student at the junior high school had concealed it since its infliction last Friday.

The Swampscott police were called in to make an investigation, when the father found it difficult to credit his son's story that he had accidentally shot himself in the left heel while carrying the gun in his right hand.

MAGNA CHARTA IN U. S. CARE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 (AP)—The eleventh Marquis of Lothian today tucked England's magna charta under a well-tailored arm and headed for the library of Congress to deposit the priceless paper for safekeeping during the European war.

Archibald MacLeish, the librarian, immediately announced the document would have the same 24-hour armed guard as that given the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence, near which it will be displayed.

Thus three outstanding documents of Democracy are being brought together for the first time.

The Marquess—who is Lord Lothian, the British ambassador to the United States—arranged informal ceremonies for transfer of the magna charta.

Some 127 years ago British soldiers in the war of 1812 held a different kind of ceremony on the same Capitol Hill, scattering the young nation's papers, and set fire to the capitol.

This Magna Charta is one of four—all the same in wording—executed at Runnymede in 1215. The document limited the powers of the king.

King John gave his approval, but didn't sign any of the papers for a very good reason—he couldn't write.

Two of the other Magna Charters are in the British Museum and the third is in Salisbury (England) Cathedral. The one which the library of Congress is getting came from Lincoln Cathedral via the New York World's Fair.

Because of it, Charles I lost his head, King George III lost the American colonies.

Wife Slayer, 4 More Slated for Pardons

A convicted slayer, whose children will never know of his crime if the State can prevent it, today was one of the five prisoners recommended for Thanksgiving Day clemency by Governor Saltonstall under new pardon and parole measures passed at the last session of the Legislature.

Boston Evening American Photo.

FREEDOM?—Annual pardon petitions brought before the governor include a plea for executive clemency in the case of Harry Markus of Roxbury . . . a petition instigated by a juror who served when Markus was found guilty on a conspiracy charge involving the death of an infant.

The unnamed prisoner has been serving a life sentence and his children, unaware that their father was convicted of killing their mother, have been brought up by relatives.

Intent on preserving the secret, the governor declined to divulge the prisoner's identity.

It was not learned whether the man would rejoin his family if released or he would seek to start life anew far from his former surroundings and loved ones.

SLATED FOR PARDONS

Under the new arrangement three of the five prisoners slated for freedom were given commutation of sentence and will be released under parole conditions—subject to Executive Council approval.

In the event that they violate terms of parole they can be returned to prison immediately.

Slated for release were:

James Burgett, Somerville, who has served 11 years of a 20 to 30 robbery sentence. He was committed at the age of 19 for a robbery staged to provide his wife and baby with food.

Antonio Gianetti, of Cliftondale, who has served 27 years of a life sentence for second degree murder. A full pardon was recommended in his case to enable him to return to Italy, where he has a wife and children.

URGE FULL PARDON

A full pardon was also recommended in order to clear the record of Harry Markus of Boston, released on parole on a conspiracy conviction after serious doubts arose as to his guilt. The charge involved the death of a baby and one of his jurors recently asked the pardon.

Mitchell Shotaian, of Worcester, who served 15 years of a life sentence for an "unwritten law" killing. Like Burgett, Shotaian was recommended for commutation of his sentence to 15 to 6-year team, making him eligible for parole.

Public hearings were held on all five cases, the Governor said, and permission for release received from the parole board, district attorney, attorney general and commissioner of correction.

Physician's Auto Looted by Thieves

One doctor's auto was looted by car thieves today while three men, allegedly trying to break into another physician's machine, were trapped in front of Carney Hospital, South Boston.

Surgical instruments valued at $250 were stolen from the car of Dr. James P. O'Brien of Commonwealth ave., Back Bay, in North Grove st., West End. A Carney Hospital employe, noticing three men near an auto owned by Dr. Morris Belsen of Winthrop, called police, and the men were seized at gunpoint.

HUB TURKEY PRICES REACH NEW LOW; FIXIN'S CHEAP

Boston's Thanksgiving feast—for all types of purses and tastes—will be available at a cost considerably under 1938 and 1937 prices.

With the factors of science and sun having come into play, King Turkey, 1939 model, and most of the trimmings have decreased in price from 5 to 10 per cent over the two-year period.

The Bird of Thanks, for example, sold in most stores for 37 cents in 1937; 31 cents in 1938. This year the birds are billed at 29—two cents lower, and one chain even offers a special on turkeys at 25 cents.

TURKEYS PLENTIFUL

Improved methods of raising turkeys are cited by marketing men as reasons for their abundance this year and attendant price decrease. Good growing weather generally has helped the markets with the trimmings.

For the pocketbook that cannot budget turkey this year there is a drop in price of pork for roasting from the 21 cents of last year to as low as 13 cents this year.

Geese at 25 cents are selling for four cents under two years ago; cranberries at two pounds for 29 cents are six cents cheaper than in 1938, while prices of squash, celery and other vegetables generally have dropped.

BUTTER HIGHER

Butter quotations, however, are up 4 cents over last year. Oranges, which sold at two dozen for 49 cents in 1937, are priced this year at two dozen for 29 cents.

White potatoes are going for 45 cents a peck at big markets, with sweet potatoes at four pounds for 25 cents.

Marketing men report that almost without exception New England-bred turkeys were milk fed and pen fattened.

Cupid Again Takes to Air

Another romance of the air will culminate in marriage on Friday when Frederick W. Peterson, first officer aboard an American Airlines ship, will take as his bride pretty Jean Houser, assigned as a stewardess aboard his ship last June.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mrs. John Lenhart, of Zellenopie, Pa. Prior to her entry into aviation she received her nurses' training in Bloomsburg, Pa., and later supervised a contagion hospital in Cook County, Ill.

Peterson, who attended Iowa State University, is son of Mrs. Elhel Hall Petersen of Silver City, Iowa. He received flight training in Dallas, Texas, and joined American Airlines last March. Following a brief honeymoon in New Hampshire, the couple will make their home in Winthrop.

When guests drop in—this gracious hospitality

Hosts and hostesses are remarking about it—increasing numbers of their guests, they find, now prefer wine as their beverage. When friends drop in, it's smart to set out for each just a glass of mellow Port or golden Muscatel. It's nice to serve your wine in small glasses, with crackers and cheese or with small cakes. For other wine serving ideas, see your retail dealer.

2 Cafes Face Loss of License

Charged with having served alcoholic beverages to intoxicated persons, two South End cafe proprietors were given hearings before the Boston licensing board today, in furtherance of a state and city drive against alleged liquor law violations.

Inspector Thomas B. Cotter of the State Alcoholic Beverages Commission testified he visited the two cafes cited and saw poorly clad men and women sitting in booths drinking.

In both resorts, persons were served long after they were visibly under the influence of liquor, Cotter said.

F. D. Faces Battle Over Defense Cash

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 (INS)—Stiff, bi-partisan opposition to President Roosevelt's 1940 national defense program developed today in the Senate.

Exponents of the agricultural west and a conservative Democrat on the Senate appropriations committee said the President will have a fight on his hands before he gets the $2,000,000,000 plus he intends to ask for expanding the army and navy.

Senator Adams (D.) of Colorado, appropriations committee member, was the most outspoken. He said Europe has its own troubles and won't bother the United States, and warned against financial instability.

"I don't want to see this country go belly-up financially," he said, "over apprehension about some war condition that doesn't exist."

His observations were echoed in responsible Republican quarters. Some Republicans revealed privately that they have received "considerable" mail from the West protesting the President's announcement he would ask a little more than two billion for the army and navy, and try to reduce other expenses.

"We ought to have more taxes and less spending," Adams said. "It is going to be hard to cut down on items other than national defense, but there we can cut. We're running in the red every year—badly. We've got so accustomed to an annual deficit now that we are just discussing how big it is going to be. We ought to strike towards a balance."

Be there—by telephone

The rambling old farmhouse by the hill pasture—you can see it all so clearly—smell so plainly those pantry, wood-stove fragrances. You can almost hear the call to dinner in the long dining room with the big fireplace—see all the dear, familiar faces. They'll be expecting you—but you can't go this year.

You can be there, though, in their very midst, part of the family reunion—by telephone. You can talk voice to voice with each of them—hear the news. You can share the joy—touch heart to heart. Telephoning even a thousand miles away is so convenient and so very reasonable. Out-of-town calls cost very little evenings after 7 and all day Sunday.

All Hub Faiths Unite In Prayers for Peace

Unified in spirit, Boston men and women of all races and religions, each in his own church and according to the ritual of his own faith, are observing "Peace Week" and praying that peace may soon return to a war-torn world.

Today marked the third day of "Peace Week," designated by His Holiness Pope Pius XII, who is making the personal sacrifice of going into retreat for the entire week, in the hope that wars already ravaging a great portion of the earth, be brought to an end.

In Catholic churches throughout the Boston archdiocese special masses for peace were being celebrated. Many of the churches will hold special masses Thanksgiving Day morning for the two-fold purpose of prayers for peace in Europe and thanks to Almighty God for peace being maintained in the United States.

Special pleas to members of various Catholic women's organizations throughout Greater Boston to carry out the Pope's wishes for peace and offer up prayers during "Peace Week" were being circulated.

OFFER SPECIAL PRAYERS

Through the Rev. Richard J. Quinn, chaplain of Federation of Catholic College Clubs, members were asked to offer up special prayers.

Hundreds of downtown workers, during their noon hour, took advantage of offering up prayers in St. Thomas More chapel, in Franklin st., St. James' church, Harrison ave. and St. Stephen's church, Hanover st. are also opened throughout the day.

Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts, president of the Philanthropia Club, said: "The Holy Father's efforts to stop the war and bring peace and justice back to the insane world are likened to Jesus Christ's work to bring back sanity to the old world."

ASKS ALL CREEDS JOIN

"The Pope's week of prayers is an excellent suggestion. Many of us are praying each day for peace, but there should be an avalanche of prayer throughout the world for this cause."

"All creeds and religions should follow the uplifting efforts of the Holy Father. I feel quite certain that the Catholic women of this city, will make special efforts to observe Peace week."

The examples of Catholics here in Boston, was followed by leaders of clergy of all other faiths. Special peace sermons are being planned in Protestant churches and Jewish synagogues during the week-end to bring "Peace Week" to a grand close.

Plans are now being formulated in various Catholic churches throughout the diocese, beginning Dec. 8, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary for a series of peace novenas.

N. E. MOTHER GIVES MESSAGE OF PEACE

A good example of the spirit in which New England women are taking up the fight to save their men-folk from fighting in foreign wars, is the message contained in letters received today.

Mrs. Catherine J. Linehan of 11 Green pl., Campbellco, wrote to the National League of Mothers of America.

"I desire pledge cards in order to start a Sentry Post. Will ask each mother who signs to ask seven other mothers of their acquaintance to sign up. I have two boys, 17 and 8."

Mrs. Linehan has the right idea in the chain organization, which many mothers, in more remote parts of New England, don't seem to understand.

All should follow Mrs. Linehan's method and divide the work of mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts. In many instances too much is left to women in a neighborhood who show zeal.

Another organizer with the right spirit is Mrs. Dora M. Frazer of 517 Pine Hill Circle, Lake View, Waltham, who writes:

"I received pledge cards and was thankful for them. I want to do all in my power to be of some help in this great cause. If you would like to send me some more pledge card I will do my bit in securing new members, as I drive my own car and it is easy for me to get around. May God help us in this great work."

TWO SET PACE

Mrs. Frazer and Mrs. Linehan have set a pace for other mothers to follow. The woman in Fitchburg made an excellent showing yesterday.

Mrs. Charles Houghton of 89 Sacramento st., Cambridge, who with Mrs. Hannah M. Connors of Milton, was the first to be enrolled as a Sentry Mother in New England, sent additional lists today from Cambridge and Somerville.

A new Sentry Mother from Cambridge is Mrs. Nora Concannon of 66 Sacramento st. Three new Sentry Mothers from Somerville are Mrs. Mary Donovan, 29 Lewis st.;

Mrs. Mary Pero, 20 Walnut st. and

Mrs. Alice Hayes, 16 Marion st.

Mrs. Anna Little of 41 Madison

st., Fitchburg, sent in a list of 65

new members from among her friends and neighbors and was made a "Patrol Mother" because of her good work. She has 11 her enrollment included "mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts of men of military age."

As she now leads a patrol unit of 49 members, her group will increase until another patrol is completed. These patrols must be split into seven units of seven members, known as Sentry Posts, with a Sentry Mother in charge of each. The selections must be made by Mrs. Little and her associates.

Mrs. Mabel Robillard, Middle-

bury, Vt., writes:

"I read about the Legion of Mothers. Will you please tell me if there is a branch here in Vermont? If not, can I join your Legion of Mothers in Massachusetts? I used to live in Boston. I have two sons who were born there. I cast my first vote in Boston, so I feel I still belong to Massachusetts a little."

BELIEVE IN SLOGANS

"It is those two boys, now 25 and 26 years old, whom I want to keep from WAR. I believe in all your slogans very much. I had two brothers in the World War. One is buried in North Cambridge cemetery."

Mrs. Rose Rogan, 94 Water st., Worcester.

"I am signing a pledge against our sons being sent to fight on foreign soil. I have three sons of military age, and I don't want them sacrificed in any European entanglement. I hope and trust God will hear our prayers to KEEP OUR BOYS IN AMERICA FOR AMERICA."

The slogans of the Legion of Mothers are:

- 1.—To oppose sending American troops to fight on foreign soil.
- 2.—To support a program of adequate national defense.
- 3.—To combat all "isms" whose object is the destruction of the American form of government.

DRIVE NAZIS FROM MAGINOT SHADOW

By MERRILL MUELLER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Nov. 28—For the first time since the war began, German troops on the Western Front used smoke shells in an attack east of the Moselle river, it was disclosed today.

The Germans used the shells yesterday when they staged a foray that carried them within a foray of Maginot line fortifications. They were then driven back by artillery and automatic rifle fire.

After bombarding a French outpost for half an hour with light and heavy field artillery, a number of German companies charged, supported by light artillery which fired smoke shells.

The attack reached the French lines but was quickly driven off. The French losses were light but the Germans suffered heavy casualties as the French brought machine guns, hand grenades and even pistols into play. It was believed that the French also took a number of prisoners.

Meanwhile, it was stated, the French war ministry has ascertained that the German lines along the entire front are "successive emplacements."

Under this system, one battalion of each regiment is placed in the lines for a week or 10 days, while the second battalion is in the immediate rear to relieve or reinforce the front lines, and the third is held in reserve. All three battalions alternate in the lines as the Reichswehr "goes to school at the front," with patrolling activities taking the place of lectures.

Yesterday the weather prevented all but a few British reconnaissance flights, but today the weather was clear and cold.

Naval authorities said that during the last ten days six attacks have been carried out by British warships against submarines under favorable conditions. It was stated unofficially that all the attacks were "probably successful."

KING SAYS WAR COST TO MOUNT

LONDON, Nov. 28 (INS)—Expressing confidence that British military forces will be equal to their tasks in war, King George VI warned today that Parliament will be asked to make further financial provisions for conducting the conflict.

The King delivered his remarks in a speech reopening Parliament. He attended Parliament personally and read his own speech, which consisted of less than 200 words, the shortest delivered at such a function since 1918.

"Prosecution of the war," he said, "commands the energies of all my subjects."

"Throughout the world my navies... are keeping free, open highways."

"At home, in France and overseas my armies and air forces are fulfilling their tasks. I am well assured they will be equal to any efforts and sacrifices to which they may be called."

"You will be asked to make further financial provision for conduct of the war. The measures which will be submitted to you are for the welfare of my people and the attainment of the purpose upon which all our efforts are set."

The opening in the House of Lords was short of its usual brilliance. No robes were worn and the usual peace-time ceremonies were reduced to a minimum.

The King in a naval uniform drove to Parliament in an automobile instead of in the state coach. He was accompanied by Queen Elizabeth. The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester and the Duke and Duchess of Kent also attended.

ure as injuriously affecting their trade.

At the same time it was announced the 2483-ton British freighter Uakmouth had been sunk today with three of its crew of 25 missing.

Meanwhile, it was learned that some of the Rawalpindi's few survivors were landed at a British west coast port last night after being picked up from the rough, icy waters off Iceland.

SURVIVOR'S STORY

(An Associated Press dispatch said one of the 11 sea men picked up by the Chitral, an armed merchant cruiser, declared:

"The Germans opened fire without warning."
(His account differed in this respect from that of the admiralty.

"They battered the Rawalpindi, whose guns were ineffective against the superior arms of the Germans," he said. "Several of us escaped in a lifeboat. By this time the Rawalpindi seemed on the point of sinking."

"As we were tossed about in the high seas the Deutschland put on full speed and passed the lifeboat, almost swamping it. We were extremely bitter about this, because we felt it was deliberately done. We later managed to rescue a man from an overturned lifeboat. All the others were drowned when the boat capsized."

(The Chitral, which picked up the Rawalpindi's wireless call for aid, arrived on the scene as a snowstorm churned the icy waters, but managed to rescue the boatload of men in the gathering gloom.)

GREEK SHIP SINKS

A second German vessel which aided the Deutschland in sinking the Rawalpindi was believed to ships sunk by Britain.

have been the cruiser Emden, namesake of the famous German World War raider.

Switzerland, meanwhile, suffered her first maritime casualty of the war when the 5260-ton steamer Helena, the former Helene Kukulund, one of nine Greek ships chartered by a Swiss transport company, was reported to have struck a mine and sunk in the English channel off the French coast. Casualties were not immediately known.

Hope of salvaging the 8857-ton Holland-America liner Spaarndam, which struck a mine in the Thames river estuary, was abandoned when the partly submerged ship caught fire at midnight.

Although the ship was 10 miles out, giant flames shooting from its hull could be seen from shore.

Five persons were reported killed aboard the liner, including a woman passenger tentatively identified by the Dutch vessel's owners as an American.

France to Aid Britain In German Blockade

PARIS, Nov. 28 (AP)—In the war at sea France was preparing to join Britain in a blockade of German exports.

A naval source, asked for an opinion on the number of German submarines sunk by the French navy since the start of the war, expressed belief that the number was about 10, of which six were certain losses, having been previously reported.

73 Nazi Prisoners Land in Scotland

LONDON, Nov. 28 (INS)—A British auxiliary cruiser landed 73 German prisoners, including 12 officers in smart blue uniforms, at a west Scottish port today.

It was understood the prisoners were the survivors of a U-boat sinking and of three German cargo ships sunk by Britain.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 28 (INS)—Their courses followed by repeated anti-aircraft attacks, several unidentified foreign planes today flew across Belgium, including Brussels. The ministry of national defense informed International News Service:

"Reports still incomplete, but between 12:15 and 12:30 p. m. and again later, foreign planes, flew over Belgium."

"They were fired on as they passed over Brussels, Malines, Ghent, Bruges and Ostend."

FINN PRESS UNIT FOR NATION

HELSINKI, Nov. 28 (INS)—The entire Finnish press rallied in support of the government today, praising its refusal to give in to Russia demands for withdrawal of Finnish troops from the Soviet border.

The keynote of the press comment was struck by the newspaper Huhtikuukausi, which stated:

"A united nation supports the honest efforts of the Finnish government."

Russian charges that Finnish artillery killed four Soviet soldiers and wounded nine aroused widespread indignation in Finland. The government denied the charges in its reply to Moscow.

Authorities also were angry at the tone of the Russian note, asserting it showed the Soviets were seeking an argument with Finland on any grounds in order to force acceptance of demands for territorial concessions, which Finland rejected weeks ago.

One of Finland's most noted warriors, Field Marshal Carl Gustav Emil Mannerheim, issued a statement saying it was impossible for Finnish artillery to have fired shots killing Soviet troops on the other side of the border.

"There must be some misunderstanding," he said, "as our most advanced battery of light field guns was 20 kilometers from the frontier and the heavy artillery was at least 50 kilometers behind the border."

"In addition, our troops on Sunday afternoon (when Russia claimed the firing occurred) were attending field services in the open air."

Red Radio Stirs Revolt by Finns

Finnish Minister, Baron Arno Armas Yrjö-Koskinen, "Finland agreed, however, to discuss withdrawal of both its own and Russian troops to an agreed distance behind the border."

The note also indicated Finland's willingness to appoint a joint committee to investigate Russian charges that four Soviet soldiers were killed and nine wounded by Finnish artillery fire.

Soviet newspapers did not publish the Finnish note or the Finnish denial of the Russian accusations.

One-third of the total space in the Moscow papers was devoted to descriptions of nationwide meetings and demonstrations of Russian "anger and indignation" against the Finnish government.

ANGRY HEADLINES

The papers were filled with such phrases as:

"Cut-throats should be taught a lesson."

Finland's stern position in defense of her freedom of action was maintained in the face of a Russian press campaign that demanded a "triple blow" against Finnish rulers, who were styled "impudent jackanapes."

(A report received in Stockholm from Moscow said that all military leaves had been cancelled in the Leningrad military district near the Soviet Finnish border and that all personnel of the Russian Baltic fleet had been ordered to duty.)

The report also stated a huge number of Russian bombers and pursuit planes participated in "enormous" aerial maneuvers over the Leningrad district, and that agents of the OGPU (Soviet secret police) were keeping the Finnish legation in Moscow under strict guard.)

DENY CHARGES

Finland's reply to the stern Russian note which demanded withdrawal of the Finnish troops from the frontier was flatly that a Finnish investigation showed there had been no shooting on the Finnish side of the border, as charged by Russia.

It added, however, that seven cannon shots were heard on the Russian side of the border, thereby plainly implying that the shots originated in Soviet territory.

Germany Warns Worse to Come

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service
Correspondent

BERLIN, Nov. 28—Nazi Germany warned England today that her overwhelming naval successes of the last few weeks are "merely a sample" of what may be expected in the future.

Competent German quarters predicted that within two months an "absolutely airtight" Nazi blockade would be forced around England, forcing Britain to her knees "as no nation has ever been forced before."

The Nazi government made clear that Britain's decision to seize German exports as a measure of reprisal against German naval warfare would result in the Reich's own counter-measures being "redoubled and intensified."

"We shall fight with all means at our disposal," a spokesman said.

"The point will soon be reached where no neutral ship will dare to enter an English harbor. Nor will any English ship be able to leave."

"We have the means and the implements to carry out the tightest blockade ever effected in history."

"Since England will not fight, and means only to starve out the Reich, we shall turn the tables upon them."

WANT SINKING EXPLAINED

TOKYO, Nov. 28 (INS)—A Japanese request that the British and German governments give Tokyo a "formal explanation" of the sinking of the Japanese liner Terukuni Maru was revealed today.

300 officers and crewmen could be saved.

CLAIM AIR CONTROL

Military experts further claimed supremacy in the air over all of France and practically all of England. Last week alone, they said, scouting planes flew over the British naval base of Scapa Flow, north of Scotland, three times, bringing to nine the total number of such flights since the beginning of the war.

German losses since Nov. 19, when there began daily reconnaissance flights on a large scale, were described as small considering the vastness of the operations. It was said that four planes were shot down over France, two controlled to land in France and one was missing.

The rescue of the 26 survivors of the Rawalpindi was announced by the German high command.

The high command's announcement, the first mention made here of the sinking of the Rawalpindi, said "German naval forces commanded by Vice-Admiral Marschall had engaged the battle, but did not identify the Nazi vessels."

LAND FORCES IN ACTION

Only minor activity was reported on the Western Front, where unfavorable weather was said to have limited air force activity.

The text of the German communication:

"In the west, there was a little scouting and artillery activity at several points on the front. The air force, owing to weather conditions, limited scouting activity to flights over the border."

"German naval forces commanded by Vice Admiral Marschall, passing through north Atlantic waters, reconnoitered the region between the Faroe islands and Greenland. Near Iceland they met the British auxiliary cruiser Rawalpindi, which was destroyed after a short skirmish."

"Despite immediate rescue efforts, only 26 of the crew could be saved."

● One way to save money is to find a quality product, and buy it at a low price.

In whiskey, this has been difficult! But now the thousands of men from coast to coast are doing it. They're buying rich, mellow Old Quaker in place of the "expensive" brands they've been using—yet saving up to $1.40 a quart!

We knew men were switching. But why? Was price alone the important thing? Or was Old Quaker's taste more important still? We sent trained investigators to find out and the statements men gave them amazed even us.

Read these typical statements: "Old Quaker costs $1.39 a bottle less than the whiskey I used to drink," says D. A. Tinker, St. Louis, Mo. "And it's every bit as good." "What," says Milo Fender, Keithsburg, Ill., "me pay over $3.00 a quart for fancy-priced whiskey? Not me, since I found Old Quaker saves me $1.30 on every quart and is every bit as good."

Statements like these are news for you. So try Old Quaker yourself. Remember, every drop is now 4 years old and finer than ever. Buy a bottle of Old Quaker today.

Plymouth Vows 'No Thanksgiving Change'

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 28—With a tenacity matching that of their nation-founding ancestors, leaders of this historic town vowed today to "rebel forever" against any change in their present Thanksgiving Day.

That pledge will be part of the big public celebration here Thursday when Pilgrim descendants and town officials sit down to a feast comprising representative food products of 46 of the 48 states—the two non-participating states unnamed.

"I'm afraid that next year, all the states will observe Thanksgiving Day at an early date in November," James A. Frazier, chairman of the board of selectmen asserted today.

"It was only the lateness of President Roosevelt's decision that prevented New England states generally falling in line this year,

I have learned from several of the governors.

"But Plymouth has agreed never to change from the last Thursday in November, come what may.

"The day is our own holiday and we intend to observe it much the same as Charlestown celebrates its Bunker Hill Day."

Chairman Frazier pointed out that the town has voted an appropriation for the yearly celebration this year for the first time in its 318 years.

Previously, private citizens provided the funds necessary for the public feast and annual reunion of families.

DOROTHY DICKS

Fear Missing Girl Victim Of Foul Play

Fearful that her attractive 14-year-old daughter has met with foul play, Mrs. Rita Dicks, of Oakes st., Everett, today appealed to the Boston Evening American for assistance.

The girl, Miss Dorothy J. Dicks, junior high school student, left home on Monday afternoon with $1.33 for a short walk, Mrs. Dicks said.

Mrs. Dicks told the Evening American that her daughter, who looks older than her age, recently beat off an alleged attacker on a Revere street.

The girl told her mother the man attempted to carry her to an automobile.

Miss Dicks, when last seen, wore a dark green skirt and sweater, plaid jacket and a blue coat with a fur collar. She is 5 feet, 6 inches tall, has blue eyes and brown hair and is of medium complexion.

She has a burn on the back of her right hand.

Even Fire Alarm Couldn't Rouse 'Em

MIDDLEBORO, Nov. 28—They caught five men "red-handed" ringing a false alarm here, but police decided today they better not do anything about it.

The five gentlemen were members of the board of selectmen, who sought in this ingenious manner to draw a quorum for a special town meeting. Even so, only 200 persons showed up—50 less than needed, until a parent-teachers meeting adjourned and came over to town hall.

Torpedo Factory Increases Output

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 (AP)—Rear Admiral W. R. Furlong, chief of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance, reported today that the naval torpedo factory at Newport, R. I., increased its output while decreasing cost during the 1939 fiscal year.

The Newport station, he said in his annual report to the Secretary of the Navy, continued its work of modernizing old torpedoes and manufacturing new torpedoes, igniters, primers, fuses, tracers and detonators "up to its capacity."

Notify Thousands Old Age Cash Ready

(Every person who has a Social Security account card has an interest in the new features of Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance which go into effect Jan. 1, 1940. For the benefit of the readers of the Boston Evening American the Boston office of the Social Security Board has supplied six brief articles each explaining one point of the new provisions. Following is the second of this series.)

Notice is now being sent out to 21,289 men and women in New England that may be entitled to monthly old-age insurance checks for the rest of their lives.

The recipients of this notice will be those to whom lump-sum benefits have been paid since the Federal old age insurance system was established Jan. 1, 1937. The amended act moves the date for monthly benefits up two years to 1940 and makes it possible for a wage earner to qualify after he is 65 years old, even if he has already received a single cash settlement. Under the original law a qualified worker could obtain only a lump-sum payment equal to 3 1/2 per cent of his total wages. This means that the man who was already 65 when the old-age insurance system was set up and who therefore has never been under the federal program may now qualify for monthly benefits. To qualify for retirement insurance in 1940 it will be necessary for him to show that he has worked in six calendar quarters and received in each at least $50 in wages and has retired.

If a person has already received a lump sum it will be deducted from the monthly payments which will be paid.

(Tomorrow: Employment After Age 65. For further information call or write the Social Security Board office in Boston, Cambridge, Chelsea, Lynn, Malden, Salem, Quincy or Waltham.)

DOWD DESTROYED RECORDS THEN FLED, SAYS DEPUTY

brother of the police commissioner, today said that he was one of the deputies from whom Dowd allegedly took $8000 in a fee pool.

He said he did not pay Dowd to get his job, but that his share of the money pool, which the missing sheriff is alleged to have taken was about $855. He said he was appointed when Dowd took office, because he was a close friend.

Timilty was waiting outside the district attorney's office for questioning when he talked to reporters. They asked him if he had paid to get his job. He answered, "No." Asked how he got the job, he said he was a friend of Dowd's. Warned by a friend that he was talking to newspapermen he said: "Why not? I have nothing to conceal."

As Timilty with several others awaited their turn to go before the grand jury Dist. Atty. Foley suddenly dispatched Lieut. James V. Crowley and Inspector Thomas Conaty to New York on a tip that Dowd was hiding there with his wife.

ARMSTRONG LOSES JOB

At the same time, Charles W. Davenport, chairman of the courthouse commission, announced that William J. Armstrong, chief engineer now under $25,000 bail after confessing collecting money for Dowd, had been dropped from the payroll.

He was replaced by John Cunningham, a fireman at the Charles St. Jail, where Armstrong is held. The appointment is temporary, Davenport announced.

Doyle said he planned to question several hostile witnesses as he result of information he has collected in the past few days.

One he described as "the most hostile witness" so far encountered. She is alleged to have attempted to intimidate scrubwomen who say they paid for their jobs. She is reported to have told them they would lose their jobs if they told their stories to Doyle or other probers. She denied emphatically that she had attempted to intimidate any of the scrub women from aiding the investigation into the practices of the fugitive ex-sheriff.

SAYS SHE DIDN'T PAY

The woman said she was placed in a county position by Dowd and that she did not pay for getting the place. The district attorney's office was informed that she sometimes came to work in an automobile and was driven home in the machine.

Doyle intimated that if there is conclusive evidence that the woman sought to prevent county employees from giving evidence he will take prompt action against her on the ground of attempted interference with the administration of justice.

Questioning of this woman highlighted a day in which 13 men told of paying for county jobs they did not get. About 20 others paid for jobs in the Dowd regime and were given temporary positions.

They were promised permanent employment, but at the end of about a month they were discharged. This angle of the case will be more fully investigated toward the end of the week, while another line of attack is being followed, it was stated.

CALIFORNIA HAS SNOW

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28 (AP)—Southern California's Indian Summer, which has kept overcoats and mufflers in the mothballs, is over. Light snow fell today in the San Bernardino mountains.

Asks 'Inquest' On Election

Wilfred Williams, who failed to gain a place as an alderman-at-large in the city of Chelsea even after a recount following the election Nov. 14, went into Chelsea court today to ask for an "inquest" on the election.

Williams alleged that 800 ballots had been defaced and because of "glaring discrepancies" asked the court to impound the papers. He also asked that he be given a hearing.

He was given a form to fill out and told that Judge Paul J. McDonald would set a date for the hearing.

'Great Boston Fire' Was 50 Years Ago

This is the anniversary of the great Boston fire of 1889 and it comes two days after the anniversary of the $5,000,000 Lynn fire of the same year.

The downtown Kingston at area here was swept by a conflagration that killed four firemen and one volunteer, destroyed 60 buildings and did damage estimated at $3,241,588. It did not, however, compare with the tremendous conflagration of Nov. 9, 1872, when the damage was put at $75,000,000.

Bay State Trio Win West Point Awards

Three enlisted men in the Massachusetts National Guard had appointments to West Point today as a result of competitive examinations.

They are: Robert D. Dwan, of McKinley ter., Lynn, private, 101st Field Artillery; William L. Bibby, of Powder House blvd., Somerville, sergeant, 101st Engineers, and Richard C. Stickney, Jr., of Longwood ave., Brookline, private, 241st Coast Artillery.

Would Abolish Job Of Suffolk Sheriff

Rep. Peter J. Graham of Jamaica Plain today filed a bill with the clerk of the House of Representatives calling for the abolition of the office of sheriff of Suffolk County and placing the duties of the office under the supervision of the city's penal institution commissioner.

The bill also calls for the abolition of deputy sheriffs and the appointment of constables at an annual salary of $2500. It would also eliminate the sheriff's home. Fees collected would be turned over to the city treasurer.

Rep. Graham added: "The deplorable conditions which have apparently existed in the operation of the sheriff's office are nauseating to the electorate of the county."

"It is foolhardy to believe that a candidate can spend from $20,000 to $30,000 on a campaign for an office that only pays $4000. I expressed this belief on the floor of the House during the last session."

"The passage of this bill could affect a savings of approximately $250,000 annually to the taxpayers of Boston. It would eliminate the maintenance of the sheriff's home at a cost of $3000 and it will result in an income of $17,500 annually to the city."

Rep. Graham said there was "a strong possibility" that the penal institution commissioner could eliminate the Charles st. jail on the grounds that Deer Island could adequately serve the city.

Abolition of the jail, he said, would result in an annual saving of $250,000.

U. S. Reveals Plans To Draft Millions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 (INS) The army and navy revealed today for the first time plans to draft millions of men to defend the United States in event of war.

The joint army-navy selective service committee has issued a booklet, for departmental use only, in which it estimated 60 days would be required for approval of a draft law, during which 790,000 men would be called to the colors. It said the army would need 500,000 men the first month and 200,000 the second; the navy 125,000 each month, and the marines 25,000 the first 30 days and 15,000 men the second month.

The committee said the plans call for a "civilian effort" as a "stopgap" in the first days of the war a vast recruiting program which would be handled by Governors of each state and prominent citizens.

The plans call also for a selective service law under which the President would register, select and draft into the services men in age groups ranging from 18 to 45. Armed forces and foreign diplomats would be the only persons exempted from registration.

WAR REGISTRATION

Each inductee becomes subject to military law upon the date and hour stated in his induction, the proposed law reads, "and remains liable to serve until six months after the date set by the President as the end of the emergency."

"Bounties, substitutions and purchased exemptions are forbidden. Only the highest and federal and state officials are exempted outright, and these only while in office; the President is authorized to defer service for essential occupation or dependency; members of recognized religious sects, whose teachings are opposed to war, are exempt from combatant service only."

Malden to Use Kane's Tactics

The City of Malden today looked forward to a municipal upheaval similar to that of Woburn under the direction of Mayor William E. Kane.

For Mayor-elect William A. Hastings, speaking on the same platform as the Woburn mayor, told an audience in Malden Pythian Hall that by adopting a leaf from the Kane book "we may get some gratifying results."

"I may not have to get a cage for the drunks in Malden," Hastings said. "But a cage might come in handy for some officials here whose performances of city duties makes them look like cases for the psychopathic ward."

"We're going to have some changes—big changes."

NAZI STORY OF NAVAL VICTORY

BERLIN, Nov. 28 (INS)—Heaping ridicule on the "admitted weakness" of Britannia's navy, the German official wireless today gave this account of the sinking of the armed merchant cruiser Rawalpindi off Iceland last Thursday:

"The naval engagement took place in the fading evening light. German artillery at once found its target. Immediately after the first hits, fires broke out aboard the British auxiliary cruiser, and rapidly spread all over the ship. The enemy ship was completely in flames."

"Several detonations were heard, and it was apparent ammunition chambers had exploded."

"The ship sank rapidly. Rescue action was begun at once, and all the survivors who could be seen were saved."

"The greater part of the crew went down with the ship."

"The British sailors taken prisoner were all Scotsmen. They declared the attack took them completely by surprise, since none had expected to encounter German naval forces in this region. They did not attempt to hide their indignation at this disappointment."

"While the British are not able to protect their own coasts, and are compelled to close some of their own ports, the strategic activity of the Germans has shown to the entire world what is to be thought of the British claim about British rule of the seas."

"The British battle fleet remains in its hiding places, and the British admiralty prefers to drag neutral ships into the danger zone."

"The strategic weakness of the British now is being more and more clearly realized in neutral countries, which believed originally that they must bow to nonexistent British rule of the seas."

State Blasts Kuhn Defense

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 (INS)—Prosecutor Herman McCarthy opened his summation of larceny and forgery evidence against Bund Leader Fritz Kuhn today by scourging Defense Counsel Peter Sabatino for personal remarks made during the defense summation.

McCarthy asserted that Sabatino "has not yet learned the first prime requisite of a gentleman and an attorney—decency."

He said he would not "deign to answer" Sabatino's references to the prosecutor's "lyric in a love nest at Miami Beach with Mrs. Florence Camp." Such a charge, he said, "would only originate in a distorted mind of the 'persecution angle,'" which McCarthy said his opponent brought into his summation "in a delicate way" by straining names of the district attorney's office.

He also scoffed at Sabatino's vague hints of a political plot against Kuhn.

SANTASON SETTING RECORD ON PLANE DASH TO BOSTON

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 28.—A new air speed record, and by Santason, bound for Boston from the North Pole for the opening of the Christmas season!

Santason sat his tri-motor racing plane, the North Wind, down at the Edmonton Airport at 1 a. m. today (4 a. m., EST) after breaking all records in his hazardous flight across the Canadian Rockies from Fairbanks, Alaska, on the second last leg of his trip to "The Hub of the Solar System."

It was a dangerous air voyage not only because of the character of the terrain beneath but also because of fear that his No. 3 motor might cut out at any moment and force him to bail out over a barren land where man, other than an occasional trapper, seldom visits.

Because of fouled spark plugs and a blocked oil line the No. 3 motor had been giving Santason considerable trouble but necessary repairs were to be made here as Santason was resting from his hazardous flight.

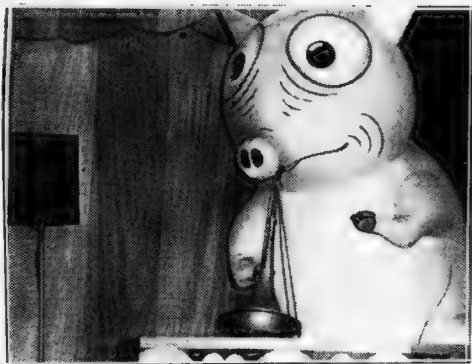

The young flier plainly showed the marks of exhaustion as he jumped from the cabin of the North Wind to receive one of the most vociferous welcomes ever accorded a national hero. All Edmonton turned out. Mayor Ralph Sennott presented the keys to the city. A committee of welcomers staged a parade and dinner in Santason's honor.

Then Santason was whisked away from the crowds and the crush of juniors, to the home of the Hon. Herbert Bowick, where he had a few hours of much needed rest. It was the first real sleep the young flier has had since he left the North Pole.

It took the entire local police force to guard Santason's special plane while the flier slept, to prevent admirers from damaging it in their quest for souvenirs.

With Santason winging his way rapidly toward Boston from the North Pole, the largest reception ever to be staged in the Hub for Santason was being prepared for his arrival at the Charles River Basin at 10:45 a. m. Thursday for the official opening of the Christmas season.

Santa Claus will be on hand to meet him accompanied by all the characters from the lands of fables. His chief aide in the reception will be Pinocchio, that famous personage who was carved from a piece of wood and had many amusing adventures. Pinocchio, incidentally, soon will be making his debut on the silver screen at the Keith Memorial Theater, Boston.

On Thursday, however, Pinocchio will play a supporting role in the welcome to Santason. It is expected that more than 1000,000 children and parents will be on hand to make the 1939 reception the largest and best ever accorded this famous personage.

The 1939 parade will be larger than any of its 10 predecessors. There will be six divisions this year as compared with four in 1938. There will be more features, balloons, clowns, bands, specialty acts and floats than ever before.

One of the biggest hits of the day will be a balloon, the one that will lead the parade. It will be "Herbie, the King of the Traffic Cops," the largest policeman in the world. Helium-filled, "Herbie" will stand more than 80 feet in the air. Ard Culliver will step right out of his travels to march with other balloons, big and little, musical and silent.

Fin. Com. Will Check 'El' Books

As the first step toward seeking a solution to the financial deficit of the Boston Elevated system, the Boston Finance Commission will make an examination of the company's books and records, it was announced today.

Although the El trustees maintain that the Finance Commission has no legal right to make such a study, an agreement to permit the study was reached after a conference between company officials, the Governor and the mayor.

Edward E. Whiting, chairman of the public trustees of the Elevated, said the trustees would cooperate in seeking some method by which the company's annual deficit might be reduced, and costs of operation lowered.

BRADSHAW Ponder Trade Rise In Durable Goods

Financial Editor

U. S. durable goods production now exceeds that of consumer goods . . . And pondering economic pundits wonder what it portends for trade activity curves . . . As well as its effect on political thinkers gratuitously master-minding recovery . . .

THE INDICES. . . . Representing the two divisions of industry are based on a normal derived from 1923-25 production figures . . . They are compiled by the Federal Reserve Board . . . Whenever heavy goods output climbs above that of lighter goods, most observers feel trade is in a transition period . . . One which witnesses initial upturn replaced by general prosperity . . . For it provides a clear indication of vitality in big raw material consuming, important employment furnishing lines such as steel, auto, cement, machinery and allied industries . . . It should mark the beginning of the most pleasant phase of the whole trade cycle . . .

TIMIDITY. . . . In accepting the prophecy of the indices is to be able to two previous experiences . . . The first in 1929 when boom was followed by a terrible period of deflation . . . And the second in 1937, when President Roosevelt spoke critically of the situation, petered out rapidly . . . Obviously pondering economic pundits are concerned with these disappointments . . . The fact we want to illuminate is the present is different in many ways from the past . . . Unfortunate excesses which brought about the declines are not present . . . And there is, therefore, no reason to believe the recovery parade has passed the reviewing stand . . .

CHIEF FAULT. . . . Back in 1929 was the prodigious amount of plants built . . . Excess capacity spell eventual doom . . . The country just couldn't absorb what it could produce . . . In 1937 the President struck at prices . . . He called them too high . . . A rise sharper than the 1914 war boom supported criticism . . . Consider these things in contrast to the present . . . No over-building exists . . . Instead there is a need to fill the vacuums created between 1931 and 1933 . . . Prices have risen moderately and many have already been corrected . . . Finally experience indicates business declines come 12 to 15 months after the production change . . . Which leaves plenty of room for a good period of prosperity . . .

WILLIAM W. WERTZ. . . . Chief accountant for the SEC sees serious difficulty ahead for American corporations with subsidiaries abroad . . . Speaking at the monthly meeting of the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants he forecast tangles in tax and other governmental record keeping . . . He told a Parker House audience composed of accountants and their guests representing bankers, attorneys and financial writers that in some instances fiscal information about subsidiary operations could not be sent out from foreign countries . . . In other cases the status of companies was so uncertain information had little value . . . Mr. Wertz said the government is not in a position to formulate any policy . . . And presumably will consider each case on its merits.

STOCK PRICES. . . . Are still changing themselves uphill and down again . . . Undoubtedly everything the market does has some significance . . . But when small volume and lack luster movements camouflage the things it is doing then it is almost impossible to read them with any degree of reliability . . . On this basis the testing of old lows last week . . . The lack of large volume on downturn . . . The willingness of investors to take "bargain" offerings . . . And the admitted lack of speculative excesses all support, in a negative way at least, the belief of many observers that prices want to go ahead.

NOTEBOOK. . . . Colorado Fuel & Iron is one of the harder earnings nuts to crack . . . The company's fiscal year ends in June . . . For the calendar year 1939 guesses run around $2.35 a share . . . For the fiscal period $2.50 . . . The latter dependent on good railroad carloadings in the first half of 1940 . . . Cooper Bessmer is expected to be in the black for this year . . . Unfilled orders are placed around $2,000,000 . . . Business is said to be coming in at a good rate . . . Columbia Broadcasting followers are chortling over estimates of $3 per share earnings for 1939 . . .

NO SLACKENING. . . . Of recovery's pace in Massachusetts is yet apparent . . . Industrial activity in October jumped 11 per cent above the same month last year . . . According to the latest figures of the State Planning Board . . . Chairman Elizabeth Herthly reveals the excellent report featured cotton textile activity and building . . . Steels Lead Creeping Stock Rally

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 (AP)—Leading stocks, under the guidance of steel, tilted forward in today's market.

Demand was far from urgent, however, and the ticker tape looked the greater part of the time. Early gains running to more than a point were shaded slightly later on.

Among favorites were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, J. I. Case, Western Union, American Smelting, Westinghouse, General Electric, Southern Railway common and preferred, N. Y. Central, Santa Fe, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville and Eastman Kodak.

Buying in steels followed overnight announcement U. S. Steel's principal subsidiary, Carnegie-Illinois, would continue present prices in the first quarter of next year. The week's high operating rate of the industry also was seen as a stimulating factor.

Wall Street seemed to have lost some of the edge of new 1940 taxes and more attention was paid to the flow of heating business items.

U. S. Government securities exhibited strength and commercial incline, but foreign, European markets were steady.

In addition to the Treasury's new $500,000,000 bond offering, in which small investors are given an opportunity to subscribe, interest was shown in the Federal Reserve figures for the week ended last Wednesday, disclosing loans to commerce, industry and agriculture climbed $38,000,000. Since the outbreak of the European conflict this item has risen $392,000,000.

Reserve member banks through out the country at the same time reported general loans and investments were stepped up to another new high at $23,092,000,000. The war-time increase in this aggregate amounted to $650,000,000.

Cheering was word from automobile manufacturing centers that, despite the Chrysler motor shutdown, movement of new cars into the hands of retail purchasers is proceeding at a high level, with the outlook for the balance of the year considered optimistic.

Hecla Dividend

SPOKANE, Wash. Nov. 24 (AP)—Directors of the Hecla Mining Co. declared a $150,000 dividend today, to be paid Dec. 22 at the rate of 15 cents a share on common stock to stockholders of record Dec. 2.

London Metal Mart

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP)—Bar silver 23 5-16d., off 1/2. (Equivalent 42 2/3 cents on the dollar basis $4.03.) Bar gold 168½, unchanged. (Equivalent $33.85.)

SLASH IN TARIFF RATES ASSAILED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 (INS)—Six Democratic senators, a parade of House members and industrial spokesmen savagely assailed proposals to slash tariff rates as Secretary of State Hull stoutly defended his reciprocal trade program as an instrument for world peace.

Herding a titanic struggle at the next session of Congress to repeal the reciprocal tariff act and restore tariff-making to Capitol Hill, the cry against cutting import duties on copper, beans and other products in the projected pact with Chile was sounded before the committee for reciprocity information Senator Johnson (D.) of Colorado, ripped into the entire reciprocal trade system as "an insidious formula for breaking down our tariff walls." He said it was "utterly foolish" to permit imports of competitive products of which there are surpluses in the United States.

Johnson's immediate target was the proposed agreement with Chile which the United States copper excise tax of four cents a pound would be lowered.

Vigorous pleas against cutting this tariff were voiced by Senators Clark (D.) of Idaho, Wheeler (D.) of Montana, and Hayden (D.) of Arizona, while Senators Ashurst (D.) of Arizona and Brown (D.) of Michigan sent similar statements of protest.

All contended reduction in the copper tariff would force many American mines to close. This would cause widespread unemployment.

ment they said while Canada, Africa, India and other copper-producing areas would benefit under the "most favored nation" treaties.

Under these treaties tariff concessions accorded to one country must be given to others to avoid discrimination, it was explained.

Hull warmly praised the world handover of British Prime Minister Chamberlain's evidence of the soundness of the Roosevelt Administration's foreign trade policy. Chamberlain had made a plea for removal of international trade barriers as a part of the "lasting peace" sought by his country.

Sticking back to the tariffing opposition to his trade program, Hull noted with approval Chamberlain's statement that "there can be no lasting peace unless there is a full and lasting unity between nations, and only by an increased interchange of goods and services can the standard of living be improved."

With the Reciprocity Trade Agreements Act expiring next June 12, and the State Department preparing to wage a fight for its extension, Assistant Secretary of State Henry F. Grady made a nationwide radio address in support of the Administration's trade policy.

SPRING SQUAD AT DAWN PAUL QUESTION

IN the grist of 1939 world-wide news, two amazingly significant items have been included among the many that also have been significant—but how many Americans, reading these particular two, remembered?

"LONDON, April 7.—Capt. Franz von Rintelen, German World War spy, attended the wedding today of Miss Faith Hall, daughter of Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, who caused von Rintelen's capture in 1915. Fraulein Marie Louise von Rintelen, his daughter, was a bridesmaid."

That was the first item of the two. And here is the second:

"LONDON, Oct. 13.—An aliens' tribunal sitting in a school house in North London today heard Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, former British Secret Service chief, guarantee the good faith of Capt. Franz von Rintelen, one of his principal foes in the last war."

After being examined by the tribunal for more than an hour, Capt. von Rintelen was freed from restrictions on traveling and possession of such articles as cameras. Like all enemy aliens, however, he is not allowed to move beyond a radius of five miles without police permission.

"Von Rintelen has been living in London. He had expected to become a British citizen."

Such is the change wrought by the passage of nearly a century since those days of the earlier war, when Rintelen was captured by the British who now sponsors him, when Rintelen was revealed as the most dangerous agent of the Kaiser in the United States.

With the outbreak of Hitler's War last September, von Rintelen, close friend of the Hohensoellern and an expatriate of Nazi Germany since 1934, offered his services to the British armed forces, and although this offer has not yet been taken up it has not been refused.

But in 1915, the case of Franz von Rintelen, reserve officer of the German Navy, intimate of the Crown Prince, athlete and sportsman, yachtman who figured prominently in the Kaiser's regattas at Kiel and youngest of Germany's chief bankers, was in an entirely different dossier.

SENT by Imperial Germany to America in 1915 to hinder shipment of munitions to the Allies, with $347,000 in cash to his order and with authority for as many millions as he needed, von Rintelen sought first to poison the press.

Falling in that, he endeavored to hamper munitions manufacture through strikes, hired thugs to burn dynamite in America and through a diabolical device called a "lead cigar," succeeded in setting fire to 36 ships at sea.

This device was a tube of lead, divided in the center by a tin or copper plate. In half of the tube was sulphuric acid, in the other half picric acid and when these two powerful acids met—the timing depending on the thickness of the tin or copper plate through which they ate—a terrific flame explosion occurred.

Planted in the mounds or cargoes of ships carrying munitions or supplies, the infernal "cigars" were almost impossible of detection.

Von Rintelen's case furnished glaring proof in substantiation of charges that Imperial Germany had long been building up an espionage foundation in America in preparation for the World War.

This foundation involved early establishment of employment agencies which, by the time they were ready to furnish secret German sympathizers to munitions factories, were agencies in apparent good standing.

It involved the sending here of skilled engineers, of business men, of bankers such as Rintelen, of artisans and craftsmen, all of whom were potential members of sabotage and espionage organizations.

Thus when Rintelen came to the United States on April 3, 1915, he was heartily welcomed by the friends he had made in earlier visits, during one of which he had established a New York branch of the Deutsche Bank.

Star of a wealthy German aristocrat erst who had long been in the Court at Berlin, holding a post equivalent to the American Secretary of the Treasury, Rintelen was reputed to have a personal fortune of $15,000,000 when he came to New York in 1915 at the age of 38 years.

After graduation from the university in Germany, Rintelen served his term in the German Navy under von Tirpitz, married into the wealthy and socially prominent von Kaufmann family of Germany and went into banking.

Some time after the turn of the century he went to London in a banking connection and while there was learning not only English finance but he was a part of that branch of Germany's spy system that radiated through banking institutions to various concerns allied therewith.

He came next to America and entered the banking house of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., New York, spending a short time there and then moving to other banking houses, some of which were branches of English and Canadian banks.

From big bankers he obtained letters from other big bankers in the United States and Mexico. Meanwhile he served as Germany's representative at exercises in New York in commemoration of John Paul Jones.

THROUGH the German Embassy and friends of the American society he was paved and he was a guest at social functions where only the most favored were invited.

Accepted as a member of the ultra-exclusive New York Yacht Club, he was entertained at Newport and amid the plush of Fifth ave., was a member of the set at the Saratoga meet in August and, of course, was a lion during the "better" of the yacht regattas in the racing season.

And through these activities, his wide acquaintanceship and the constant new contacts with men and women in high social and official places, he gained information about America such as only the most favored could possess.

Finally he left the United States for a stay in Mexico, stating that he eventually might be able to open branches of the Deutsche Bank in Mexico and South America. In Mexico he used his banking connections and warm letters of introduction from noted Americans to gain considerable information regarding the Mexican attitude toward America.

It was 1909 before he returned to Germany with a full report on the lack of preparedness in the United States against war and his conviction that Mexico could easily be stirred up against the States.

Back in Germany he now became host to many of the friends he had made in America and who were travelling—and so, by the time he again landed in New York in April, 1915, his welcome was assured. For instance, the New York Yacht Club roster for 1915 again carried his name.

Later, in attempting to check on him, police and Secret Service agents could find no record of Rintelen's arrival here, but eventually they learned he had come in on a Swiss passport under the name "Emil Gausche," which identity he dropped as soon as he had left the pier.

FRANZ VON RINTELEN

Now began an amazing Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde existence—with the amiable Dr. Jekyll visiting his society friends and meeting influential business men who were selling supplies to the Allies, flattering society matrons and impressing debutantes with his story of a "financial mission."

But the austere and hard-eyed Mr. Hyde conferred with von Bernstorff, the German ambassador; Capt. von Pape, the spy German military aide at the embassy, and Capt. Boy-Ed, arrogant naval attaché—the infamous three who were behind the German espionage and sabotage in America.

Rintelen told them his mission—to stop the flow of munitions and supplies to the Allies, at whatever cost, no matter what the means. They furnished him with names, but one they gave him he had already—that of David Lamar of New York, a man who once had been a shrewd stock trader, who had earned the appellation "The Wolf of Wall Street," but who now had fallen upon adventures.

The German banker's espionage platform contained these planks:

The purchase of war materials here for Germany, as a means of boosting prices; the fomenting of war between the United States and Mexico, as a means of compelling the American government to seize all available war munitions for its own use; a campaign of publicity and the arousing of public sentiment to bring about an embargo on arms shipments; strikes in American industry and peace and pacifist parades and demonstrations; a series of acts of violence against factories and munition-carrying vessels.

MOST of these schemes were well in operation by the time Rintelen considered it time to flee from a situation of peril he had created by his own German arrogance, the trait which tripped up many an espionage agent of the Kaiser.

To the shabby Lamar, the German agent delegated the task of obtaining sentiment for an arms embargo and stirring up strikes and pacifist demonstrations.

To a more crummy group, Rintelen assigned the work of sabotage. In this group, it was later disclosed, were Capt. Otto Wolfert, a former superintendent of the Atlas Line pier in New York; Karl von Kleist, ex-sec captain; Ernst Becker, an electrician on the North German Lloyd liner Friedrich Der Grosse, who made the bombs; Friedrich Wilhelm Parades; Wilhelm Parades and George Fiedel, assistant engineers on the Friedrich Der Grosse; Eugene Reister, assistant manager of a labor lyceum in Brooklyn, N. Y., where the conspirators allegedly met; Walter Under, a German, and Bonifacio Bonifacio and Joseph Zellert, American citizens of German extraction, who were the conspirators' couriers.

Out of Rintelen's multifarious activities arose many of the mysterious fires and explosions in munitions plants, the burning of ships at sea, the attempts on the Welland Canal in Canada, strikes in war industries and the like. Rintelen rapidly mobilized his force of money and men. He went first to the Trans-Atlantic Trust Co., where he was known by his right name and where he arranged his finances.

His next rented office on the eighth floor of the same building that housed the trust company and had a telephone running to it through the switchboard of the banking house.

Using the name of Fred Hansen, he received persons in that office. There he summoned to his help a part of the German munitions systems. He did not hesitate to call upon any German for assistance, and thousands of willing workers were at his disposal.

He wished a naval reservist.

He knew where to get him; if a member of the landsturm was needed for any detail, he was called.

From Boy-Ed he received data about the sailing of ships; from von Pape facts about munitions factories. He met Paul Koenig and assumed numerous tasks to him, particularly the location of munitions factories, their products and exports.

Koenig, until von Pape needed an organizer of loyal Germans in America, had been a brutal, bullying, Prussian superintendent of police for the Hamburg-American Steamship Line in New York.

Koenig—who was called "P. K." by his hirelings—kept tabs with his men on the pier workers, investigated complaints, cursed the longshoremen, scouted off the wharf rats and did general police work.

It was through Koenig that most members of the far-flung espionage ring were recruited.

Rintelen participated with influential Germans in the scheme of actually buying leading munitions factories. He attempted the running of the British blockade.

Through Capt. Steinberg, a German naval officer, Rintelen chartered ships, purchased materials, caused false manifests to be made and the cargoes and arrangements for shipment to Italy and the Scandinavian countries, whence they were trans-shipped.

This officer, it was revealed later in dealings with Dr. Walter T. Scheele, German chemist and proprietor of a drugstore in Brooklyn, N. Y., a German in the United States for 24 years, married to an American wife—but a German still loyal to the Fatherland.

It was Scheele who contrived the fire bombs, the four-inch "lead cigars" that Electrician Ernst Becker manufactured and that agents planted in ships carrying Allied munitions and stores.

THAT was one blunder Rintelen made—having any dealings at all with Scheele, who had long been under surveillance.

Another blunder was his hiring of Jack Hammond, a veteran New York newspaperman, to get newspaper publicity favorable to an embargo on the shipment of munitions.

Some time after he had accepted the assignment, Hammond, with that newspaperman's sixth sense, became suspicious that Rintelen was not all he represented himself to be and that behind the embargo drive was something more sinister.

Hammond went with his suspicions to the Department of Justice and was asked to keep on with Rintelen and report whatever he might be able to dig up.

And a third blunder made by Rintelen came with the sinking of the Lusitania on May 7, 1915, when Rintelen was himself has often been blamed.

Where the proper play of a man so deep in intrigue as Rin-telen was to remain in his Dr. Jekyll role with his society friends and speak of the crime as a lamentable blunder by his country. The German arrogance triumphed over the veneer of his role, however, and with elation barely concealed, he justified the sinking.

Guests who were with him at the time were deeply offended. Embroiled in heated argument over the affair, Rintelen was rash enough to hint that even among his business friends there be confronting munitions carriers.

Some of those present eyed him curiously. He talked too familiarly of such matters. More than one of the persons reported their suspicions to the authorities.

Meanwhile Rintelen was delighted to read about strikes at the Remington Arms Co. in Bridgeport, Ct., the Standard Oil Co., Bayonne, N. J., the General Electric plant in Schenectady—many other strikes in May and June and July of 1915. His agents were working well.

The peace movements were also progressing under the able leadership of Lamar.

One, Andrew D. Melo, became a confidant of Rintelen now. Melo was a well-known engineer and promoter and had exploited concessions in Mexico. He belittled Rintelen's national peace council schemes and hinted that Lamar had been "playing" the German for money.

Perhaps Melo himself realized how much of that German money was available at the time he suggested that the only scheme feasible would be to buy the whole munitions output. Then Germany could conquer the world or at least win the war, and speedily.

The wine of suggestion went to Rintelen's head. Here was a big money scheme. He would take the scheme to Germany and present it personally. Things were beginning to get a bit warm in America anyway. When he came back the world would be no intrigue. He would come as a straight business man—with cash to buy a product openly.

HIS "Emil Gausche" passport he felt he did not dare use again. It was his sister's and he had obliterated the "y" in "Emil" and altered it otherwise. It would not do to risk it a second time. He decided to risk it when his application for a passport under the name of "Edward V. Gates" was denied.

When the liner, Noordam, bearing Rintelen, Mrs. Melo and a Miss Brophy, secretary to Melo, reached Falmouth, English agents detained the vessel 14 hours and finally seized Rintelen and Melo.

The former was interned and subsequently sent back to the United States where he had three trials on three charges—conspiracy to restrain foreign trade, perjury in applying for a passport, and a charge of attempting to obstruct the production of munitions by fomenting strikes. They were the only laws under which Rintelen's acts—albeit committed before our entry into the war—could be questioned, although the laws subsequently provided heavier penalties.

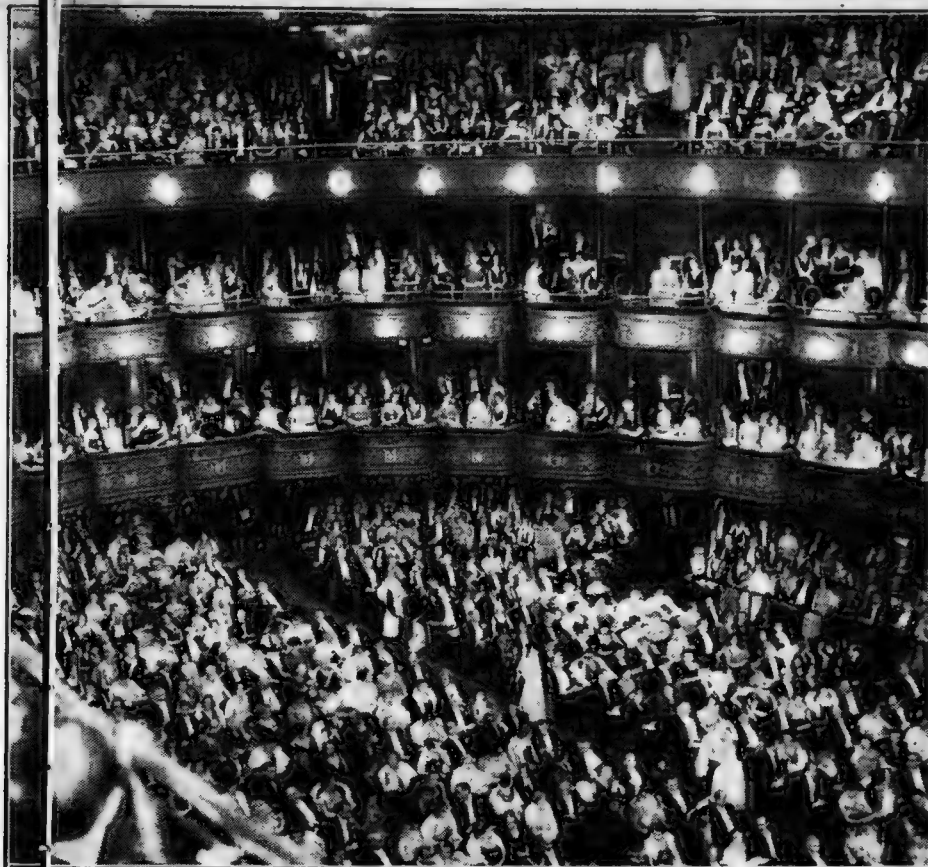

Rintelen was sentenced to a total of four years and two months, most of it in Atlanta Federal Penitentiary. Twelve of his confederates likewise were jailed.

Several times the Imperial German government demanded that he be exchanged for Americans imprisoned in Germany, but the demands were refused.

In November of 1920, President Woodrow Wilson pardoned the German on the condition that he leave the country by January 1, 1921.

On Friday, December 31, 1920, as the old year was ebbing, Rintelen sailed out of New York harbor aboard the liner Susquehanna, bound for Bremen. There had been none of his former society friends at the pier to bid him good-bye.

Diamond Horseshoe Filled as New York Hails Opening of Grand Opera Season in Metropolitan

HIGH JINKS TOP HIGH C AT OPERA

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 (AP)—The old Metropolitan Opera settled today for another season of arias after a brilliant first night had some unexpected notes on the bill.

One of the faintest in the crush and sink during the intermission promenade down the grand way. A hat in top head in wheel. More brough around the lobby and gazed up at the dowagers.

The opera itself, Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra," with a cast that included Lawrence Tibbett, Giovanni Martinelli, Elisabeth Rethberg and Ezio Pinza, went off without a hitch, but at one moment the thud of heels doing a clog in the foyer sounded to those in the back of the house over the music, and a dowager whispered, "What in the world is going on?"

It was just a gay operagoer who added a few dance steps and some assaults to the opera's 55th opening. One of the special officers of the Fouse finally accompanied him to his car.

Satorially, it was one of the prettiest opening nights of recent years. Many women turned out in white, many wore pink camellias, roses, and pink carnations in their hair. Lavish white furs and pale, lay dresses stood out against the red plush of the "golden horse-shoe."

The presence of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. August Belmont and Mrs. Paul Penneyer, daughter of J. P. Morgan, made it a four-star evening socially.

A COMMUNICATION to the Federal Maritime Commission from one of the West Coast marine unions urges the United States Government to rebuild the Pacific trade of this country by subsidizing the American Merchant Marine.

The specific proposal of the Maritime Firemen, Oilers', Watertenders' and Wipers' Association is that shipping service from San Francisco, Seattle and Portland to the Orient, Australia and New Zealand be supported with public funds.

It would be a fine thing, of course, to rebuild the American Pacific trade.

However, it is ironical that the present deplorable plight of the American Merchant Marine, on the Pacific coast and elsewhere, is largely due to the repressive and destructive and sometimes Communistic and racketeering tactics of maritime labor unions.

A long series of strikes has tied up ports, made the keeping of sailing schedules impossible, diverted commerce to other transportation mediums or destroyed it altogether, and in general has disrupted the entire maritime industry.

The United States should surely have a successful and efficient Merchant Marine.

But the elements which have helped to destroy the Merchant Marine can hardly expect the United States Government to revive it by subsidy as long as the danger and probability exist that it would be destroyed again by the same means.

THE BETTER THING is for the Government to take over and operate the American Merchant Marine as an essential arm of naval defense.

The auxiliary services of merchant fleets to battle fleets in the event of war are too vitally important to be destroyed by peacetime arguments between employers and workers.

American Merchant Marine fleets should be capable of instant conversion to a war basis, and should be instantly available and adequate for whatever service of supply any national emergency requires.

American merchant seamen should be incorporated into the Naval Reserve, and be trained for the essential duties of reservists, and be subject to the authority and discipline of the armed services of the country.

Let the Government save the Merchant Marine, and primarily save it from the racketeers. It should be as dependable and reliable as the Navy. It should be as free of racketeering, Communistic, subversive and un-American elements as the Navy.

Vital to our defense and vital to our security, the American Merchant Marine should be taken over and operated by and with the American Navy.

THIS YEAR'S CHRISTMAS, more than any of its predecessors, will be an AMERICAN holiday and season.

Here "Peace on Earth" is a reality, not a mockery. Our good will is toward all men and all nations. We want war and will have none, save one of defense.

PLAYING NURSE
Expert Care for Doll

There is consequently an abundance of satisfaction for all Americans in the news that the United States has become the world's greatest toymaker.

Because of other nations' devotion to destruction and its implements, our country is producing games and playthings worth nearly one hundred million dollars.

Fittingly, our toymakers have accepted the responsibility which devolves upon them as the creators and suppliers of the mediums that contribute so much to molding the character of tomorrow's men and women.

More than ever before, toys are EDUCATIONAL as well as amusing. Patterned after adult life, the miniature world of childhood seeks to STIMULATE the young mind and ENCOURAGE self-expression.

Airplanes that fly, locomotives and trains that puff steam and sound whistles as they round realistic curves, animals that walk, tiny radios, adding machines, typewriters, motion picture machines—these are but a few of the new, fascinating playthings.

Of course, submarines, battleships, tanks, cannons and other military instruments will be popular. But in the 1939 Christmas toy banquet they will constitute ONE COURSE rather than the WHOLE MENU. And patriotically, the accent will be on DEFENSE and not on AGGRESSION.

No parent and certainly no child should neglect the genuine pleasure which an afternoon spent in the toy departments of Boston stores affords.

Flat-Bottomed Boat

HOWEVER mundane our affairs . . . Romance still offers golden wares . . .

'Twas only a flat-bottomed boat . . . which frequent bailing kept afloat . . . yet, to the boy, it was far more . . . a clipper ship in which to sail . . . around the Horn, in wintry gale . . . to Hongkong or to Singapore.

And now, though he has settled down . . . a grocery clerk in a small town . . . the millpond will forever be . . . for him, the roaring, boundless sea.

March of Events

By BENJAMIN DeCASSERES

WILL WE SOON have "heat tanks" on the roof? Engineers of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and scientists like Dr. C. C. Abbot have worked out methods whereby a householder might "trap the sun's rays" on the house top and use them during the winter thereby cutting down coal consumption.

"Miracles" are happening so rapidly nowadays that I envisage the death of three famous old wheezes:

"You can't get sunlight out of cucumbers." "You can't squeeze blood out of a turnip." "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear."

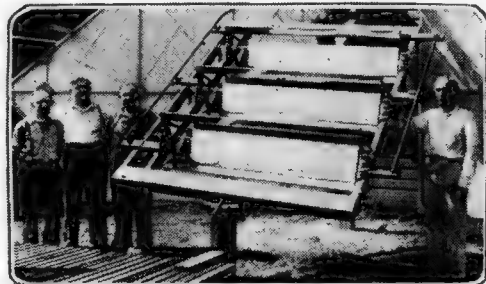

I can hear our future scientists saying "That's what you think!"

No argument, gentlemen—I'll even believe that, someday, you'll find out the greatest secret of all—a secret at present inviolably sealed in the brains of our President and Secretary of the Treasury—and that is the art of spending and lending one's self and one's country out of debt and into solvency.

THE STORY of another Polish conquest: On the 31st of December, 1806, the public crier in Warsaw announced that Napoleon Bonaparte would present himself as a New Year's gift to the inhabitants of Poland the next day.

Napoleon was just beyond Posen when from the cheering throng that lined the road there emerged a girl belonging to a great Polish family, but dressed as a peasant.

Breaking through the guards,

TRAPPING SUN'S RAYS FOR HEAT AND POWER

Dr. C. C. Abbot, Right, With Wondrous New "Solar Furnace"

she hurled flowers at the French emperor and seized his hand, uttering this heroic line:

"Sire, the Poles are ready to give their blood for you, and the heart of all Poland is yours!"

The girl was beautiful. Napoleon was struck for a moment, and then he shouted "Forward! Let's go!" But as he left he hurled a rose at her.

The girl, scared, fled the country, returned, followed Napoleon to Warsaw—and—well—of course!

That woman was the famous Marie Walewska, who had a child by Bonaparte and who did so much to set the course of European history—like the manicurist that Gen. von Blomberg married, which small incident, they say, was the cause of Hitler's Poland drive.

No history, it seems, is without a petticoat, for while the pen may be mightier than the sword, there is no doubt woman is mightier than both.

SADARICHI HARTMANN, the Sage of Banning, Cal., who has just celebrated his 75th birthday, broadcasts to the world, as he usually does on his birthday, an epigram. For this year it is:

"Art is the expansion of a soul into space. As 'Modernistic' artists have no soul, they can't expand."

As a matter of fact, "Modernistic art," with a few rare exceptions, is a shrivelling of the imagination and the dehydration of ideas.

Some long-hair called "Modernistic" art "Byzantine." A typographical error, no doubt. He meant Aschcanine.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—I had a very good flight up from Atlanta, Ga., but we had a headwind which made us a few minutes late in landing. As on practically all my flights recently, the ship was filled. I think a great many more people must be travelling by air. This time there were four or five women, but men still predominate in air travel.

I left all at Warm Springs in grand spirits. The President was just starting off with two of the forestry people to look over the woods. No more congenial occupation than that can ever be found for him.

Miss Thompson awaited me and, in spite of the usual quantity of mail, I was so glad to see her I would have done twice as much mail with joy. After she went home, I worked until I was through with what she left for me to do.

BRIGHT AND EARLY this morning I was down in the dentist's chair, for I broke off a corner of a tooth while I was away and had to have it replaced.

At 10:30 I went out to ride. Our old bridle path along the river is temporarily out of commission on account of the work on the new airport, so the Agricultural Department's experimental farm grounds, which I think have now been turned over to the Army, provide some good paths. We tried riding around the edge of Arlington Cemetery, which also proved a good place to ride, and we came back past Fort Meyer stables.

MRS. ROOSEVELT

I have a note today from Dr. Latham Hatcher, who is interested in the Alliance for Guidance for Rural Youth, and I am going to have the pleasure on Dec. 5th, of talking with some of the youngsters on the radio. The Alliance has been working for rural youth for 25 years and is celebrating its birthday by trying to raise a little more money than usual this year.

In New York City, on the first of December, they will open their campaign and they have taken over the opera Tannhauser. I wish I could be there, for it is one of my favorite operas. In any case, I shall take some tickets and send them to some one else to enjoy it.

DR. HATCHER tells me that the Alliance has provided individual guidance for approximately 21,000 rural youth. They have published many books and bulletins and they are putting on a national demonstration of a county youth guidance program in Breathitt County, Ky.

To anyone who knows, as I do, the difficulties which face many of our rural youth in different parts of the country, the work of this association seems very important. These young people need help in receiving an education, deciding what they want to do in life, obtaining medical care, adjusting themselves to the changes in our civilization—whether or not they are going to live their adult lives in rural or urban places.

Whether we live in the city or the country, we can all afford not to help them, for they will make the nation of the future.

Broadway Medley

MISS MENKEN READY FOR RETURN

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Smith Committee of the National Relations Board has subpoenaed all the books of the National Lawyers Guild, regarding charges of favoritism for Guild members in cases before the board. The subpoena is the most comprehensive one ever issued in such cases . . . Herman Shumlin will produce the Jim Thurber-Elliott Nugent play, "The Male Animal." Nugent will appear in it . . . Prosecutor John Rogge, who convicted the Louisiana political leaders, is on his way to Michigan to investigate conditions there . . . Helen Menken has found the play in which she'll return to Broadway. It's by Walter Armitage and has a South African setting.

IN SIDNEY KINGSLEY'S new play, "The World We Make," Ralph Forster's lines are: "I was doing new work in Vienna . . . great, important, some said . . . perhaps . . . then they came—wanted me to subscribe to their inhumanity. I wouldn't . . . They destroyed my work . . . no matter. They didn't destroy me. I came here, started all over again. We're lucky to be in a country where the human spirit is free" . . . In Forster's case, that's autobiographic. In Vienna and Berlin he started with Elisabeth Bergner. He could have remained there, after Anschluss, if he had been willing to subscribe to Nazi principles. But he came here—and this is his first role on the American stage.

JOHN KENNEDY, son of Ambassador Kennedy, was at El Morocco, Saturday and discussed his experiences in Scotland—where he had been sent by his father to supervise the victims of the Athenia . . . "It was quite a problem," he reminisced, "and then, out of a clear sky, came a $25,000 gift from Herbert Klotz to help these victims. Yes, wonderful things happened in Scotland" . . . "More wonderful things happen in New York," Marion Carter, El Morocco's publicist, told Kennedy. "Come with me across the room—and meet Herbert Klotz."

MAURY MAVERICK, the ex-Congressman who has become the Mayor of San Antonio, Tex., is receiving many invitations from Mexican officials to cross the border and be their guest at civic functions. Maverick will accept as soon as his local difficulties are concluded . . . "But aren't you afraid that a revolution may break out in Mexico while you're there?" he was asked . . . "Mexican revolutions are nothing to fear," he explained. "The last time I was in Mexico I stayed there six weeks. Not until I was on the train back to Texas did I learn, from a uniformed man sitting next to me, that the revolution had been on for a month."

ELISABETH BERGNER

ALL THAT'S MISSING in "The Great Purge" is the deadly hand of the Watch and Ward Society . . . The W. and W. is a Boston private prosecuting agency that has been in business since Salem had its witch-hunt—or thereabouts . . . And with a Bar Association, a State Auditor, two legislative commissions, two District Attorneys, a United States Attorney and the Attorney General's office all knee-deep in suspects, nary a peep comes from the Watch and Ward . . . We should be hearing from this quarter in the near future.

THE ENERGY OF THE INVESTIGATORS—the selected ones and the ones elected by the pee-pul—is having an effect on the citizenry at large . . . The whole town seems bent on playing cops and robbers . . . City editors are working as they've seldom worked before—because private sleuths of all descriptions are contributing their two-cents' worth in the form of "tips" . . . The mailbag of a department such as this one is brimming with notes blown from a whistle . . . The trend started mildly enough, but now it seems tinged with fanaticism.

A LETTER at hand gives the exact date in January on which two appointed officials, one in the State, and one in the county service, will hand in their resignations . . . Another says that on Tuesday, Nov. 28, (today), a half dozen public servants are to be indicted secretly in Federal Court . . . This yarn, according to our informant, was "due to break in a St. Louis newspaper first" . . . (A lot of the missives have angles no less screwy than that) . . . This asserted wholesale piece of prosecuting is supposed to be based on income tax violations.

POLITICIANS ARE greeting one another in the downtown labyrinths with a greeting: "Have they got around to you yet?" . . . Officers of the law are putting the usual questions—but to themselves . . . Along will come a gent clutching his brow in the familiar gesture indicative of the business of frenzied thinking, and as he draws alongside you hear him mumble: "Where was I on the night of January 18th?" . . . It's getting a bit frantic and when the story alleging the popular Republican, Commissioner of Conservation Ernest Dean, with a million-odd dollars worth of alleged laxity hit the street, your reporter thought he detected a wave of "Whews" . . . The boys are throwing their punches too fast . . . It won't be long before our fair Commonwealth attains a rating along with Kansas City and Louisiana, and the first thing we'll know we'll be having Westbrook Pegler swooping down on us.

I SUGGEST AN ARMISTICE, and are there any seconds? . . . And here is what the suggestion is based on . . . It's going to get very, very dirty before very long . . . Weeks ago, in a Sunday column, this pillar of moderation served warning that we were in for the nastiest period of charges and counter-charges in the town's modern history . . . We predicted that the Republicans would do the leading, but that there will be some feverish countering by the Democrats when things get hot . . .

'ALIAS THE DEACON' FOR BOB BURNS

By Louella O. Parsons

Bob Burns

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 28.—My favorite bazooka player, Bob Burns, is going a-visiting to make his next picture—for today Paramount granted Bob permission to go to Universal to star in "Alias the Deacon." Off hand I can't think of a better role for Robin (as Bing Crosby calls him) than that of the genial and philosophical crook who poses as a deacon and then turns straight. The play by John B. Hymer and Leroy Clemens ran for years in the big towns and in stock companies, and Universal made it first as a movie in 1927 with Jean Hersholt.

"Alias the Deacon" will be megaphoned by Richard Wallace and will be his first picture since his hit with little Gloria Jean in "The Underpup." Nat Perrin is working on the script and doing a hurry-up job since the picture is going into production Jan. 8. I know Universal is pleased about this deal because they have been trying to borrow Bob for over a year.

PHYLLIS HAVER

Phyllis Haver and Billy Seaman here for the Cornell-Pennsylvania game with a big party; Jane Wymen and Ronald Reagan guests of honor at Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity dance where they presented Jane with a gold evening bag with the fraternity crest and Ronnie with a beautiful cigarette case.

OUR WHOLE TROUPE was entertained after the show Saturday night at the Warwick where we saw Mrs. George Fitzmaurice's sister, Connie, who is married to a Philadelphia business man; Betty Grable and Bert Lahr are in town and we dropped in to watch them rehearse "Du Barry Was a Lady" which opened last night; George Lamaze's Warwick lobby looks like Hollywood with Ethel Merman, Betty and Bert, the Jules Steins and our gang including Arleen Whelan, Susan Hayward, Joy Hodges, June Freissner, Jack Mulcahy and Mecca Graham talking shop between shows.

BILL ISREAL, genial manager of the Earle Theater, has done everything to make life easy so we don't mind five shows daily. But even with the Philadelphia houses closed on Sunday we didn't have a vacation—hopping to Camden for three shows. Hate to brag—but we're doing five shows daily and each one is to standing room only. Who said Philly is a cold show town? Osa Massen, who won film recognition in "Honeymoon in Bali," has been given a contract by Walter Wanger.

DAILY STORY

Love's Way

ALBERT CAME to my mother's rooming house on a rainy twilight. He was tall and dark and reminded me of Ted. He wore his clothes carelessly and his hands were long and white.

While I was showing him the room, he mentioned that he was a pianist out of a job. He asked if I knew of any dine and dance places that might employ him. With a sudden start, I told him about the Apollo.

Ted and his band were at the Apollo, and Ted and I had been on the verge of getting married. That is, until Frances Warren came along.

She was the new singer at the Apollo. Ted had talked about her voice incessantly. I sensed what was in the offing when his dates grew farther and farther apart. I knew Frances has taken my place.

"WELL, how about my taking you there tonight?" Albert asked and hastily added:

"That is, if you haven't anything better to do."

"I haven't," I replied, excited, for here was my chance to see what Frances Warren looked like and also to show Ted that there were other men in my life.

Almost immediately after we were seated at our table at the Apollo, I saw Ted and Frances on the rostrum. They were in deep conversation.

Finally Ted saw me and came to the table. He frowned when I introduced him to Albert and told him he was a pianist out of work. Ted was embarrassed and to cover it, suggested that Albert go up and play for Frances' number. Albert excused himself and left.

"Alice, I want to explain about my not seeing you," Ted began in a solemn voice.

"It isn't necessary," I said coldly. "You see, Alice, I . . ." Ted said, but the applause cut him short.

FRANCES, beaming on the patrons, started her encore. Suddenly Ted jumped to his feet and grabbed my arm.

"Let's get out of here," he spoke angrily, "I've got something to say to you, young lady."

"But she's singing Ted," I protested. "Let her sing," Ted retorted as he led me toward the door.

"Let her sing to that lanky friend of yours!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF babes" etc.—comes many a jolt for what ails us. Here's young ALFRED P. HIGGINS, of LOS ANGELES, Cal., with a well-aimed poke at our present educational drift—and a cry that should set the drums a-beating in your blood.

"Down with these white collar standards! What's the matter with old-fashioned, American hard work?"

Says Alfred: "For the last few years, we have been slowly but surely incorporating an ancient European fallacy in our schools. That is, we've been adopting the old English caste system of Gentleman versus Manual Worker. Under this man provided you did a white collar, and were entitled to lord it over the underdog, who performed manual chores."

"THIS PLAN might work in England where the 'gentleman's superiority' was based on the low wages and servile acquiescence of the 'laboring class' who handed on their mediocrity, generation after generation. But it certainly has no place in a Democratic America where— theoretically, at least—each man deserves and has an equal chance."

"Yet the English plan was sold to us in every possible way. Smart Americans were all supposed to be 'gentlemen.' So we all took clerical jobs, rode the street car after a hurried breakfast, read the morning paper and reached the office ready for a pinch of soda. Then we would sit all day chasing elusive figures through machines and in and out of books."

"And what did it buy most of us? Exactly nothing. We became small time cashiers with big time aspirations in a nation of supposed democracy—the most miserable people on earth."

"WHAT'S THE ANSWER? I know, for most of us—Work. Common labor. Work with the old American pride in honestly skillful craftsmanship."

"The old-time work field has become a frontier, needing pioneers. If we start at the bottom in some trade, work hard, use the education and the experiences that we've had, we will reap the harvest our pioneer fathers reaped."

WELL, WHY NOT? You're "bringing your boy to be a gentleman." But what is a gentleman? A SMIRKING MAN-NEKIN with synthetic standards and puppet gestures? Or AN HONEST HUMAN BEING—efficient and self-respecting?

Widow Acts in Mystery Death

TAMWORTH, N. H., Nov. 24. While Sheriff James Welch today pressed a probe of the death of Chester Whiting, 37, a milk tripper, his 29-year-old widow threatened to employ private detectives to get at the bottom of the mystery shooting.

Although authorities believe Whiting was the victim of foul play, Mrs. Mary Whiting declared she is sure her husband was shot mistakenly for a deer by a cowardly hunter, who since has refused to face the consequences.

She declared he wore a buckskin jacket, which would make him a target for a nervous or inexperienced hunter. Meanwhile, Sheriff Welch sent nine rifles and four dogs from local hunters, to Bladwell, to match up the rifle cartridge found at the scene of the killing.

Love

Pity or Love?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Recently his ex-fiancee has visited his family. She is now partly blind. She claims she still loves him and cannot forget . . . he claims he loves me and says that no one can come between us. But he pities this girl so deeply. Can this pity lead to revival of his love?

What can I do to help this girl? My first thought was to give him up, no matter how much I care. I'd hate to be selfish, but he says he has only pity for her.

WORRIED.

As this young man tells you he is in love with you only, don't worry over his pity for his ex-fiancee, even though the adage has it that "pity is akin to love." A man would be hardly human if he didn't feel sorry for a girl who has this terrible affliction. As their engagement has been broken, I don't think you need worry.

Waitress Is Star's Guest at Opera

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 (AP)—A restaurant waitress told a woman patron last week it was her dearest wish to attend the opening of the Metropolitan opera season.

Clad in a swilling evening gown, the pretty waitress, Miss Marion McCarthy, outshone many a society debutant when she attended Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra" as a guest of the restaurant patron—Elsabeth Rethberg, feminine star of the opera.

Cut Pretty Figure on Ice

PERHAPS you are all wound up, literally, in your school figures . . . first getting the feel of outside edges, then inside edges, and hoping that you too will some day do a floor spin . . . or perhaps you're very grateful that you can stay up on your feet at all . . . no matter, you should be decorative as you possibly can. Short-skirted skating suits are no longer the luxury item they once were . . . and you'll find nothing much cuter than these two, illustrated, even if you're ready and willing to pay three times as much!

Plaids on ice are perhaps newest looking. A flare-pleated plaid skirt combines with royal blue or red-hooded jacket, tight and neat as a bellhop's. This is fine, light wool (water repellent) and is lined with trail cloth, so you may wear it for outdoor skating even when the wind is sharp as a razor. $10.98, sizes 12-18.

Fine-wale corduroy in Viking blue takes blazing accent of red. The flare skirt is full-lined with red saten, and so is the detachable hood. Embroidered field flowers decorate the short jacket. You might choose the same suit with a white jacket and red skirt. Sizes 2-8, and only $7.98.

As a Santa, you'll be supreme if you give one of these outfits. For shopping information phone Annie Brink, Fashion Editor, L1Berty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write.

Dr. Eddy's Question Box

IS IT O. K. TO KEEP ASPARAGUS IN TINS? | WHAT IS VITAMIN VALUE OF GRAPE JUICE?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY

Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

I have an invalid in my family who is fond of asparagus. When I get a bunch of asparagus, I cut off the good ends and put it in a pound tin can and place it in the ice-box. I have been told that asparagus has so much acid that it would eat the tin and be poisonous. As long as I have used this tin, it has remained as bright as when I started. Will you please give me your idea on this matter? Mrs. A. P. B., N. Y.

You need have no worry about the amount of tin that would be absorbed by the asparagus which you keep in a tin can in your refrigerator. It is perfectly safe for you to keep it in this way. Tin is very little attacked by acids.

A Decided Difference
Will you please tell me if bottled grape juice, any good brand, contains the same vitamins that are found in the juice of citrus fruits. Would a glass of such grape juice before breakfast be as beneficial as the same amount of orange juice? Mrs. W. C., Cal.

The vitamin content of grape juice and orange juice differs quite considerably. They have about the same content of vitamin A, which is not very much. Vitamin A contains the growth factor. Orange juice contains a higher content of vitamin B than grape juice. Vitamin B, like vitamin A is essential for growth.

Orange juice is rich in vitamin C.

the anti-scorbutic vitamin, while there is not very much of this vitamin in grape juice. You will see, therefore, that grape juice does not take the place of orange juice in our dietary, although it is a wholesome beverage.

Canned Purees Are a Convenient Form of Vegetables for Babies
Are canned vegetables for babies better than those prepared at home from fresh vegetables? Mrs. I. G. C., Cal.

When vegetables are cooked and pureed in the home the process usually leads to a considerable destruction of vitamin C owing to the access of air during the process. The canned pureed vegetables are more valuable than the home prepared, in proportion as care is taken during the pureeing process to exclude air. Most of the manufacturers who are marketing these products today are paying special attention to this and, consequently, I heartily approve of these products.

Cooking

New Treats for Holiday

By MARTHA LEE

Holidays are here again: Thanksgiving, and then only a second away, Christmas. That means all sorts of excitement in the kitchen for what's a holiday without festive food. And you simply can't have festive food without using fresh eggs.

SOME TASTY DISHES

To moisten your turkey stuffing add a beaten egg to some of the liquid in which the giblets were cooked - but not too much liquid.

If you want white potatoes, serve them as potato puffs. These glorified mashed potatoes go into the oven as soon as the turkey comes out and bake while the gravy is being made. Serve on the platter with the turkey.

POTATO PUFFS

6 cups mashed potatoes, slightly warm
1/2 cup melted butter
3 eggs
1 1/2 cups milk
Salt and pepper

Whip potatoes and butter until creamy; add eggs and milk beaten together, and seasoning. Beat well and form into balls of two sizes, one about as large as an egg, the other half as large.

Place the large ones on a greased baking sheet, top each with a smaller one, brush with additional melted butter. Bake in a very hot oven (450 deg F.) for 20 minutes or until puffed and brown. This will make eight double puffs.

PUMPKIN GOES MODERN

Brussels sprouts with Hollandaise sauce add their quota and sweet potato soufflé may be served instead of the white potatoes.

Pumpkin may go modern in a pumpkin ice-cream pie. Serve pumpkin ice cream in pastry shells, top with whipped cream and sprinkle with toasted coconut.

PUMPKIN ICE CREAM

1 1/2 cups sugar
2 tbsps. cornstarch
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. ginger
1/4 tsp. mace
1/2 tsp. salt
2 cups rich milk
4 egg yolks, beaten
1 1/2 cups pumpkin
1 tsp. grated orange rind
4 egg whites
1 cup broken pecan nut meats
1 cup cream, whipped

Combine cornstarch, sugar, cinnamon, mace and ginger, and salt. Add the milk which has been scalded and cook until thick. Add the egg yolks, beaten, and cook 1 minute longer, stirring constantly. Add pumpkin and orange rind. Cool.

Fold in whipped cream and stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze for 1/2 hour, stirring twice. Add nuts and finish freezing (about 3 hours in all). Serve in pastry shell or individual tart shells. Garnish with whipped cream. Candied orange peel may be chopped and sprinkled on the whipped cream, instead of using the grated rind.

The nuts may be used for garnish, if you prefer.

If plum pudding is the favored dessert, a grand sauce is made as follows:

SAUCE
2 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup cream
2 tbsps. rum
Beat eggs until creamy, add sugar. Whip the cream and add to egg mixture. Flavor with rum.

A Christmas Carol

By CHARLES DICKENS

YES! and the bedpost was his own. The bed was his own, the room was his own. Best and happiest of all, the time before him was his own, to make amends in!

"I will live in the past, the present and the future!" Scrooge repeated as he scrambled out of bed. "The spirits of all three shall strive within me. Oh, Jacob Marley! Heaven and the Christmas time be praised for this! I say it on my knees, old Jacob; on my knees!"

He was so fluttered and so glowing with his good intentions that his broken voice would scarcely answer to his call. He had been sobbing violently in his conflict with the Spirit, and his face was wet with tears.

"They are not torn down," cried Scrooge, folding one of his bed-curtains in his arms: "they are not torn down, rings and all. They are here—I am here—the shadows of the things that would have been may be dispelled. They will be. I know they will."

His hands were busy with his garments all this time: turning them inside out, putting them on upside down, tearing them, mending them, making them parties to every kind of extravagance.

"I don't know what day of the month it is!" cried Scrooge, and he looked at the clock. "I don't know how long I have been among the spirits. I don't know anything. I'm quite a baby. Never mind. I don't care. I'd rather be a baby. Hallo! Whoop! Hallo there!"

He was checked in his transports by the churches, ringing out the loudest peals he had ever heard. Clash, clish, hammer; ding, dong, bell. Bell, dong, ding; hammer, clang, clash! Oh, glorious, glorious!

CHRISTMAS DAY

Running to the window he opened it and put out his head. No fog, no mist; clear, bright, jovial, stirring, cold; cold, piping for the blood to dance to; golden sunlight; heavenly sky; sweet fresh air; merry bells.

"Oh, glorious! glorious!" cried Scrooge, calling downward to a boy in Sunday clothes, who perhaps had loitered in to look about him.

"Eh?" returned the boy, with all his might of wonder.

"What's today, my fine fellow?" said Scrooge.

"Today?" replied the boy. "Why, Christmas Day."

"It's Christmas Day!" said Scrooge to himself. "I haven't missed it. The spirits have done it all in one night. They can do anything they like. Of course they can. Of course they can. Hallo, my fine fellow!"

"Hallo!" returned the boy.

"Do you know the poulterer's in the next street but one, at the corner?" Scrooge inquired.

"I should hope I did," replied the boy.

"An intelligent boy!" said Scrooge. "A remarkable boy! Do you know whether they've sold the prize turkey that was hanging up there? Not the little prize turkey; the big one?"

"What, the one as big as me?" returned the boy.

"What a delightful boy!" said Scrooge. "It's a pleasure to talk to him. Yes, my luck!"

"It's hanging there now," replied the boy.

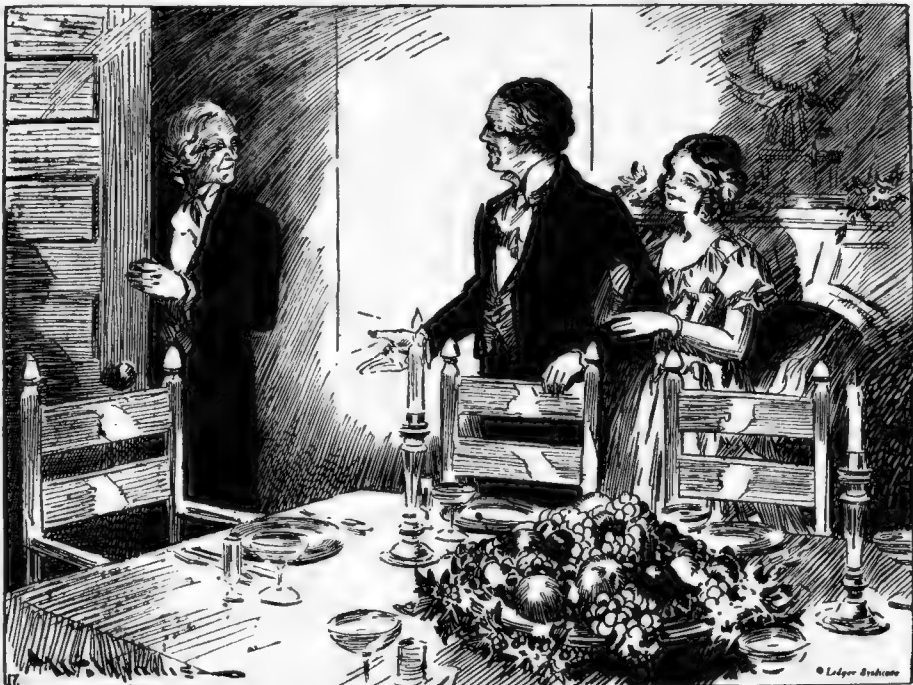

"Is it?" said Scrooge. "Go and buy it."

"Walk-er!" exclaimed the boy. "No, no," said Scrooge. "I am in earnest. Go and buy it and tell 'em to bring it here that I may give them the direction where to take it. Come back with the man and I'll give you a shilling. Come back with him in less than five minutes and I'll give you half a crown!"

The boy was off like a shot. He must have had a steady hand at a trigger, who could have got a shot off half so fast.

"I'll send it to Bob Cratchit's," whispered Scrooge, rubbing his hands and spluttering with a laugh. "He shan't know who sends it. It's twice the size of Tiny Tim. Joe Miller never made such a joke as sending it to Bob's will be!"

The hand in which he wrote the address was not a steady one; but still it did it, somehow, and went

"It's I, your Uncle Scrooge. I have come to dinner. Will you let me, Fred?"

downstairs to open the street door, ready for the coming of the poulterer's man. As he stood there, waiting his arrival, the knocker caught his eye.

"I shall love it as long as I live!" cried Scrooge, patting it with his hand. "It scarcely ever looked at it before. What an honest expression it has in its face! It's a wonderful knocker! Here's the turkey. Hallo! Whoop! How are you? Merry Christmas!"

It was a turkey! He never could have stood upon his legs, that bird. He would have snapped 'em shut off in a minute, like sticks of sealing wax.

"Why, it's impossible to carry that to Camden Town," said Scrooge. "You must have a cab."

The chuckle with which he said this and the chuckle with which he paid for the turkey and the chuckle with which he recomposed the boy were only to be succeeded by the chuckle with which he sat down breathless in his chair again and chuckled till he cried.

A HAPPY SOUL

Shaving was not an easy task, for his hand continued to shake very much; and shaving requires attention, even when you don't dance while you are at it. But if he had cut the end of his nose off, he would have put a piece of sticking-plaster over it, and been quite satisfied.

He dressed himself "all in his best," and at last got out into the streets. The people were by this time pouring forth, as he had seen them with the Ghost of Christmas Present; and walking with his hands behind him, Scrooge regarded every one with a delighted smile. He looked so irresistibly pleasant, in a word, that three or four good-humored fellows said "Good morning, sir! A merry Christmas to you!" And Scrooge said often afterward, that of all the blithe sounds he had ever heard, those were the blithest in his ears.

He had not gone far when, coming on toward him, he beheld the portly gentleman who had walked into his counting house the day before and said "Scrooge & Marley's, I believe?" It sent a pang across his heart to think how this old gentleman would look upon him when they met; but he knew what path lay straight before him, and he took it.

"My dear sir," said Scrooge, quickening his pace, and taking the old gentleman by both hands. "How do you do? I hope you succeeded yesterday. It was very kind of you. A merry Christmas to you, sir."

"Mr. Scrooge,"

"Yes," said Scrooge. "That is my name, and I fear it may not be pleasant to you. Allow me to ask your pardon. And will you have the goodness—here Scrooge whispered in his ear.

"Lord bless me!" cried the gentleman, as if his breath were taken away. "My dear Mr. Scrooge, are you serious?"

"If you please," said Scrooge. "Not a farthing less. A great many back payments are included in it, I assure you. Will you do me that favor?"

"My dear sir," said the other, shaking hands with him. "I don't know what to say to such munificence!"

"Don't say anything, please," retorted Scrooge. "Come and see me. Will you come and see me?"

"I will!" cried the old gentleman. And it was clear he meant to do it.

"Thank'ee," said Scrooge. "I am much obliged to you. I thank you 50 times. Bless you!"

He went to church, and walked about the streets, and watched the people hurrying to and fro, and patted the children on the head, and questioned beggars, and looked down into the kitchens of houses, and up to the windows; and found that everything could yield him pleasure. He had never dreamed that any walk—that anything—could give him so much happiness.

In the afternoon he turned his steps toward his nephew's house. He passed the door a dozen times before he had the courage to go up and knock. But he made a dash, and did it.

"Is your master at home, my dear?" said Scrooge to the girl.

"Yes, sir."

"Where is he, my love?" said Scrooge.

"He's in the dining room, sir, along with mistress. I'll show you upstairs, if you please."

"Thank'ee. He knows me," said Scrooge, with his hand already on the dining room lock. "I'll go in here, my

A WELCOME GUEST

He turned it gently, and aided his face in round the door. They were looking at the table (which was spread out in great array); for these young housekeepers are always nervous on such points, and like to see that everything is right.

"Fred!" said Scrooge.

Dear heart alive, how his niece by marriage started. Scrooge had forgotten, for the moment, about her sitting in the corner with the footstool, or he wouldn't have done it, on any account.

"Why, bless my soul!" cried Fred, "who's that?"

"It's I. Your Uncle Scrooge. I have come to dinner. Will you let me in, Fred?"

Let him in! It is a mercy he didn't shake his arm off. He was at home in five minutes. Nothing could be heartier. His niece looked just the same. So did Topper when he came. So did the plump sister, when she came. So did every one come into the room. Wonderful unanimity, wonderful happiness!

But he was early at the office next morning. Oh, he was early there. If he could only be there first, and catch Bob Cratchit coming late! That was the thing he had set his heart upon.

And he did it; yes, he did! The clock struck 9. No Bob. A quarter-past. No Bob. He was full 18 minutes and a half behind his time. Scrooge sat with his door wide open, that he might see him come into the tank.

His hat was off, before he opened the door; his comforter, too. He was on his stool in a jiffy, driving away with his pen, as if he were trying to overtake 9 o'clock.

"Hallo!" growled Scrooge, in his accustomed voice as near as he could feign it. "What do you mean by coming here at this time of day?"

"I am very sorry, sir," said Bob.

"I am behind my time."

"You are!" repeated Scrooge.

"Yes, I think you are. Step this way, sir, if you please."

"It's only once a year, sir," pleaded Bob, appearing from the tank. "It shall not be repeated. I was making rather merry yesterday, sir." "Now, I'll tell you what, my friend," said Scrooge. "I am not going to stand this sort of thing any longer. And therefore," he continued, leaping from his stool and giving Bob such a dig in the waistcoat that he staggered back into the tank again, "and therefore I am about to raise your salary!"

Bob trembled and got a little nearer to the ruler. He had a momentary idea of knocking Scrooge down with it, holding him and calling to the people—"A the court for help and a straight waistcoat."

"A Merry Christmas, Bob!" said Scrooge, with an earnestness that could not be mistaken, as he clapped him on the back. "A Merrier Christmas! Bob, my good fellow, than I have given you for many a year! I'll raise your salary, and endeavor to assist your struggling family, and we will discuss your affairs this very afternoon over a Christmas bowl of smoking bishop, Bob! Make up the fires and buy another coal scuttle before you dot another I, Bob Cratchit!"

Scrooge was better than his word. He did it all and infinitely more; and to Tiny Tim, who did not die, he was a second father. He became as good a friend, as good a master, and as good a man as the good old city knew, or any other good old city, town or borough in the good old world.

Some people laughed to see the alteration in him, but he let them laugh and little heeded them, for he was wise enough to know that nothing ever happens on this globe for good, at which some people did not have their fill of laughter in the outset; and knowing that such as these would be blind anyway, he thought it quite as well that they should wrinkle up their eyes in grins as have the malady in less attractive forms. His own heart laughed, and that was quite enough for him.

AUSTEN LAKE

21-Year-Old Echo of A Rooster's Crow

TODAY A STRANGE THING HAPPENED, something which links the workaday present with the world tragedy of twenty-one years ago. The office telephone rang and the impersonal chirp of an operator said, "Providence calling." There was an interval on the wire like sounds of frying fat until a man's voice, slow and solemn, said, "This is Bill Broadfoot."

Now in my recollection there has only been one other of that odd name and that was Joe Broadfoot, a lumpy ex-baker from Rhode Island who had been a tank corps billet-mate in a French farm town on the Haute Marne. He was a sandy-haired youth with a comical cowl, quizzical blue eyes, a taste for cognac and Scotch dialect songs. He had an unquenchable, bubbling nature and when despondent moods swept the hayloft where we lived, he was handy with some crude, slap-stick philosophy which set things right again. He, above most men I have known, had the gift of laughter. So we mourned him later when a Heinie 77 disabled his tank and a machine gun got him through the middle.

We always said it was too bad those German gunners hadn't known Joe like we did, because then they wouldn't have shot him.

So I said to the voice, "Did you know Joe Broadfoot?" and it answered, "I am his brother."

By AUSTEN LAKE

There Was a Penny Post Card

NOW THIS IS DOUBLY STRANGE. Because Joe's brother had been a lance corporal in the Black Watch, a kiltie whose picture, on a penny post card, Joe had carried in the breast pocket of his tunic. I saw it only once and that was a summer day in 1918 when I found Joe weeping in a cobwebbed corner of our stable. He wasn't crying exactly, but just sat there with his head cupped in his hands, shaking with silent sobs.

That was when I saw the picture. It was a stained relic of a grim-faced youth in Scotch military skirts, with a sporran hanging from his belt and a black bonnet cocked over an ear. "He's gone," said Joe, fumbling an official British notice which began, "His Imperial Majesty deeply regrets . . ."

There wasn't much to say, futile words and an arm over the shoulder. I don't remember what I said, but we smoked a cigarette in the murky gloom. The thing that survives from that moment is a sound which somehow seems etched on my inner ear, as sounds do in times of deep emotional stress. There was the crow of a rooster, a particularly strident crow from a neighboring roost—one that had often annoyed us before dawn while we huddled in our hayseaks waiting First Call.

He Had a Small Sister

"NOW," SAID JOE IN THAT ELDER DAY, "We are alone," and I knew that he meant that he and a small sister, who lived in Rhode Island, were left. Because, it's all his whimsies and love for pounding out bar ballads with the butt of a drinking corkscrew, Joe had sat many evenings before Tatloo by a guttering candle, scrawling notes to his sister. "So now we are alone," said Joe, seeming to taste the words as he spoke.

Well, that, come summer, was 22 years ago. Time has rolled rapidly, since that day and the later one when Joe kept his rendezvous with fate on the edge of an Argonne wood. I didn't see what happened, but I heard about it later; how supporting infantry had swept past the bulk of his shattered tank and an American stretcher crew had picked him up, still conscious, but sinking fast. While an ambulance waited for a full load he had handed some mate a little handkerchief bundle and a wad of French francs, instructing him to spend the money but to send the keepstakes home.

So today, when the voice in the telephone said, "I am his brother," and identified itself as belonging to the Black Watch, Corporal, Bill Broadfoot told how he had lain many months in a British hospital, being lifted to succeeding waves of consciousness and swept down again toward merciful depths. So that, when healed and invalided home, Joe had never known that he still lived.

And a Buddy With a Purse

EARLY THIS MONTH I WROTE A COLUMN of war reminiscence, mostly personal trivia which relays the Tank scene in that old, ominous time. I mentioned Joe Broadfoot as a kind of view-hallo down the years to a time-dimmed, half-forgotten ghost. Since then a letter came, typed beneath a heading which read, "Wespa Decorating Company, 22 Mechanic Street, Westerly, R. I.—Painting and wall papering," and signed by one, Michael McCarthy. It said, and I quote from the page which is beside me now, "You mention Joe Broadfoot. I slept with him the night before he got hit. There was some buddy in his outfit who has, if still alive, a pocketbook with some pictures which his family might like to have. I thought we might be able to find out who that buddy is . . ."

Bill Broadfoot said he had recently been sent a clipping of the column. He wanted to know the facts. So I told him, feeling mournful that such a morbid message had been delayed so long. There was a hush in his voice as our conversation closed and little pauses that hinted tears. And I felt the futility again of that old summer morning, twenty-one years ago when I found Joe weeping in a cobwebbed corner. And again from dim memory came the faraway echo of a rooster's call, a thin clarion which seemed to cry, "New dawn, Dawnawn!"

EDDIE SHORE REFUSES TO PLAY HERE TONIGHT

By BILL GRIMES

The telephone tingled in Art Ross' office this noon. It was Eddie Shore calling from Springfield. "I won't play tonight," said the recalcitrant Bruins defense man. That was all.

And so Eddie won't be in there against the Leafs at the Garden tonight, and it is doubtful if he'll be in action next week.

Shore is willing, it was learned, to live up to his agreement to play home games with the Bruins after Dec. 15, but he does not want to play before that time.

He already has played three games with the Bruins here to the detriment of his Springfield hockey interests, he contends.

HOLLETT ON DEFENSE

Shore's refusal to appear against the Leafs means a shakeup in Bruins' ranks tonight.

Flash Hollett, right wing on the third line, will be moved back to defense to pair with Dit Clapper, and Jack Schewchuck will team with big Jack Portland.

Eric Pettinger, general utility man, will take Hollett's place on the right wing.

This was all brought about by the injury to Jack Crawford several weeks back. Crawford will be out for another two weeks, it was learned today.

CANT PLAY WITH INDIANS

The Shore case is a nightmare to the Bruins, and it just as far from being settled today as it was before the season started.

Eddie has a lot of money invested in the Bruins, and the Indians have been losing consistently. Eddie feels he should be with his own club and not with the Bruins.

That is all right with the Bruins, but they will not permit him to play with the Indians.

Said President Weston Adam today:

"It would be unfair to the National Hockey League, the Boston fans and Boston players to have Shore playing in the International League when he is a major league star."

"I don't think it's fair of him to ask for such permission."

"If he wants to retire for the year or permanently, it's all right with me. But I do wish he'd make up his mind."

WANTS HIS RELEASE

Shore does not want to play with the Bruins at all. The weekly trips here annoy him. In Springfield he told the Associated Press he "hoped he would be released" so that he could devote all his time to his own hockey club.

He figures he could help the fate in Springfield by playing with his own team. There is no doubt he is correct in that estimate, but he won't play for the Indians while the Bruins need him.

It's a messy situation, one which might lead to a rift in the players' ranks and hinder them in their drive to retain the Stanley Cup.

Harvard Names Captain Today

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Harvard elects a football captain for 1940. The lettermen have their picture taken in the Pilon Field house lounge, and immediately afterward retire to the locker room where they cast ballots for next fall's leader.

There are three prominent junior contenders, and unless the boys cast aside every Ivy tradition and put in a sophomore dark horse, one of these three will be in charge of next year's pigskin policies.

Joe Gardella, Arlington boy, is perhaps the most likely prospect, with Gene Lovett and Don Lowry close behind him. Gardella, who starred as a sophomore fullback is the most consistent player of the three.

This year he was a defensive standout on the ill-fated Harvard outfit, and it was only an unfortunate leg injury that kept him from making more than his share of Crimson scores.

BOSTON GUNNERS RETURN WITH FULL-HORNED BUCKS

By DARK MONTREAL

Newly back from Lincoln, Me., today were Frank Larkin, South Boston plumbing-heating contractor, and Billy Mann of the Boston market district—with two fine, full-horned bucks, alike enough to be twins.

SONJA'S RIVAL . . . Lois Dworshak, versatile ice performer, will show at the Boston Garden, Thanksgiving night, in the Ice Vanities of 1940. She has been rated the closest competitor of Sonja Henie for artistic ice honors.

Green Prepares For Air Attack

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 28 (AP)—Coach Earl Black stressed passing defense as the Dartmouth football squad went through a light workout in preparation for its season's finale against Stanford in New York Saturday.

Stub Pearson, who was replaced at center in the Cornell game by Bob Lempe, returned to the first string today and looked like a probable starter against Stanford. Capt. Whit Miller and Bob Kreiger, varsity ends, recovered from injuries, took part in the workout.

JUNIOR BEATS FOLEY

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 28 (AP)—Paul Junior, Lewiston, came from behind to win a unanimous 12-round decision over Pat Foley, Worcester, Mass.

Skate Star At Garden

The Fifth Annual National Winter Sports Exposition and Ski Tournament, which opens at the Boston Garden on Thanksgiving night and continues through Sunday evening, is not only national in interest, but international as well.

Figure skating artists of international fame will display their ability on the steel runners as well as some of the world's leading trick skaters.

One of the headliners of "Ice Vanities" is Vera Hruba, "the champion without a country" and one of the most famous women figure skaters in the world.

In addition to the skating part of the program, many of the world's foremost skiers will be seen in contests and exhibitions on the gigantic ski hill, to be built in the Garden—35 high high, and running from the Garden rafters 200 feet down to the floor.

ELSIE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses regularly in the Boston American every day affairs and problems.

One head had 13 points, the other 12; but you'd have to look sharp to see the difference.

Hunting out of their camp at Lincoln, up well to the north of Bangor, Larkin and Mann found the woods exceptionally noisy, but their luck above par.

Three days in the woods netted them their limit. The partridge season was closed, but they saw a lot of grouse, and concluded that there ought to be a good hold-over of the birds for next year.

Time was when the Thanksgiving Day morning hunting trip was a tradition among veteran New England sportsmen. Dad and grandpop and the boys would be up before dawn and off to the woods with guns and dogs.

Some years it would be a fox hunt, with the bugle chorus of the hounds echoing across the bleak brown hills. But more often it would be a long morning in partridge covers or rabbit swamps, where whatever was shot would make welcome addition to the family larder.

But fox or grouse or rabbit, good lucks or bad, it really made little difference. Result was the same in all instances—the women of the family had the early part of the day free for Thanksgiving cooking, and the men came trudging home at noon with appetites sharpened to do justice to the feast.

Things are different, today, however. And it's only the luckily-situated sportsman who can hope to go afield and be home to eat dinner with the family.

Near at home hunting is hard to find, for most of us.

And this week's holiday isn't one that lends itself, somehow, to long jaunts by auto and pickup snacks in wayside camps.

Here, in Massachusetts, just now, there isn't much to hunt, in any event. The partridge and woodcock seasons are closed, and only upland game available is rabbits.

Deer hunting season in New Hampshire's southern counties opens Friday, with the game reported plentiful but stalking conditions dry and difficult.

In New Hampshire, Thanksgiving Day will be last chance on partridge, with a considerable number of gunners in the woods to add final notches to their season's score.

The Massachusetts deer season opens, as usual, the first Monday in December. That'll be next Monday, Dec. 4. Deadline is sunset, Saturday, Dec. 9.

Maine's deer and bear seasons wind up Thanksgiving Day. Most of the partridge shooting in that State ended earlier still. That leaves nothing much for the Pine Tree gunners except that good, reliable standby of New England winter hunting, long-eared, loping Br'er Rabbit.

Jacks for the boys who like to run their dogs—and cones for those of us who are contented just to jump 'em out of the brush piles!

Reinsman's Wife Killed in Crash

HARRIMAN, N. Y., Nov. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Walter F. Cox, wife of the superintendent and part owner of the famed harness racing track at Goshen, died last night in an automobile accident.

Mrs. Cox's automobile struck a parked truck, also injuring her chauffeur, Peter Horan. The Goshen track is the site of the Hambletonian, richest harness race in the world.

Stanley Elected Tiger Captain

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 28 (AP)—Howard Stanley of Cranford, star pass receiver, was elected captain of the 1940 Princeton football team. He succeeds Robert F. Tierney of Pearl River, N. Y.

Stanley was Princeton's high scorer this year, chalking up six touchdowns for 38 points. He is a chemistry major and is undergraduate manager of the Charter Club. He prepared for Princeton at the Hun School.

Announce Chicago Race Dates Today

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 (AP)—George Foster, secretary of the Illinois racing commission, announced it would meet today to consider and possibly assign 1940 dates.

Sportsman's Park, half-mile oval which had a highly profitable 1939 day season the past summer, probably will be discussed. The track's future has been a matter of conjecture since the recent slaying of Edward J. O'Hare, its president.

HOOP GAME FOUNDER DIES AT 78

LAWRENCE, Kans., Nov. 28 (INS)—Dr. James A. Naismith, inventor of basketball, died early today at the age of 78. His last illness started with a cerebral hemorrhage, followed by heart attacks.

Forty-eight years ago Dr. Naismith invented basketball at the Springfield, Mass., Y. M. C. A. to fill a need for winter sports. The equipment was a ball and two old peach baskets.

The sport spread around the world and in 1936 was played at the Olympic games in Berlin, with Dr. Naismith in the audience.

Born Nov. 6, 1861, at Almont, Ontario, Dr. Naismith was an orphan at the age of 8 years.

His A. B. degree was earned in McGill College, Montreal, and a few years later he obtained the degree of master of physical education from the Y. M. C. A. College in Springfield, Mass.

His degree in medicine came from Colorado University in 1898. Later he studied for the ministry, but never preached. Neither did he practice medicine.

His entire work was devoted to physical education. He came to the University of Kansas in 1898 and taught actively until 1937. Among his writings was a book, entitled, "The Basis of Clean Living," which set forth his creed.

Walter Cox's Wife Killed in Crash

HARRIMAN, N. Y., Nov. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Emma Putney Cox, 69, wife of Walter F. Cox, superintendent and part owner of the famed harness racing track at Goshen, N. Y., was killed when the automobile in which she was riding struck a parked truck three miles south of here.

State Trooper J. B. Brown and the car was driven by her chauffeur, Peter Horan, who suffered minor injuries. The operator of the truck, Harold O'Dell, 33, of Salisbury Mills, N. Y., stopped to help another motorist, remove a deer, struck by the latter's car from the road.

Gehrig Remedy Seen In Vitamin B-1

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Use of vitamin B-1 to improve a case of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, the deadly, muscle-wasting disease that struck Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees, is announced in the Medical Record.

Not only has it been considered an incurable disease, but in medical literature every case always got progressively worse and worse.

The patient in the new treatment is a Canadian World War veteran. His arm, hand and leg muscles had been wasting since 1939. He had the typical dragging ankle of this malady. Speech was difficult because he could hardly move his tongue.

USES TONGUE AGAIN

In March of this year the vitamin treatment was started, both by hypodermic and by mouth, and with a diet rich in vitamin B-1.

At the end of 10 weeks, the veteran could use his tongue again and talk with ease, his ankle dragged less, and muscles in arms, legs and hands were distinctly stronger.

The report is by W. J. McCormick, M. D., of Toronto. It is the presentation of a new medical idea that Vitamin B-1 is a remedy for several kinds of paralysis, including the dreaded infantile variety, and for sleeping sickness.

He says the vitamin treatment was tried in six cases of infantile paralysis, all of which recovered. In two cases, paralysis already had started, but disappeared with recovery.

He reported six other types of muscular-nervous disease which included shaking palsy, the muscular weakness known as myasthenia gravis and two types of muscles shriveling. In most of these, there was serious paralysis.

AMNESIA CURED

Vitamin B-1 treatment improved them all and enabled some who had been unable to walk to go about unaided again on their own feet.

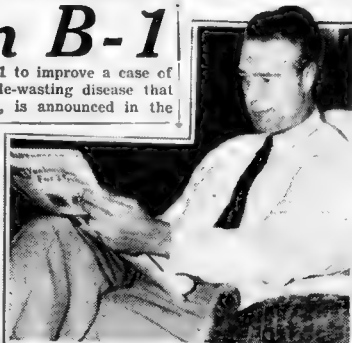

One case of amnesia, or loss of memory, which accompanied an attack of shaking palsy, was cured in two days.

There were three cases of sleeping sickness, or encephalitis lethargica, and all these were not only apparently cured, but the recovery was rapid.

McCormick advances the idea that faulty diet may be one of the prime causes of all these diseases. He blames lack of vitamin B-1 to a large extent on modern food-processing methods.

He previously has reported that epidemic infantile paralysis was first reported in Germany in 1840, a year after the modern steel-roller system of milling white flour began.

Epidemic sleeping sickness, he said, was reported in 1917 in Austria in an area of war food privation.

Lou Gehrig, in new post as penal commissioner, hopes for his infantile paralysis cure by Vitamin B-1, was revealed today in Medical Journal.

LUKACHIK RETURNS TO EAGLES SQUAD

There is now a slight possibility that Frank Leahy will have his entire squad of 40 Boston College men ready for the traditional game with Holy Cross College Saturday at Fenway Park.

Alex Lukachik was released from St. Elizabeth's Hospital where he had been confined with a back injury since Saturday, and Lou Kidhardt today was feeling much better and talking about playing against the team he has already started against twice.

Coach Leahy expects to have Lukachik ready for the Crusaders, but the case of Kidhardt is still very much up in the air.

This afternoon the varsity was to get a chance to look at Holy Cross plays. The freshman team, under the direction of Ted Galligan, yesterday practiced with sets of Crusader plays, unearthed by the Eagle scouting system during the course of repeated expeditions to Worcester this season.

BUILT PASS DEFENSE

Particular emphasis was to be placed upon pass defense in order that the varsity backs might get a chance to defend against the kind of aerial bombs which Ronnie Cahill is expected to chuck.

Regarding the Boston College offense Coach Leahy will probably hand his men a few new plays between now and Saturday, polish up on those that have enabled the attack to click so smooth.

Today and tomorrow will mark the final practice sessions on Alumni Field. At the conclusion of tomorrow's drill the varsity squad will be banded off to Campion Hall, Jesuit Retreat House in Andover.

There the Eagles will remain in seclusion until Saturday morning when they will be bussed to the ball park for their final regular game of the campaign.

We have a remote suspicion that the affair O'Hare may be the Welsh rabbit that might even make the Dowd nightmare a comparatively pleasant dream . . . Mr. O'Hare died recently as George W. "Man About Town" Clarke puts it in his column today, "died so suddenly of bullet poisoning" in Chicago . . . The O'Hare investigation is getting hotter.

YOU NOTICED there was a change of pace in the investigating front yesterday, with a Republican—the aforementioned Commissioner Dean—as the sacrificial goat to whom everyone is itching to launch a counter-barrage . . . I think we're in for a holiday season of cops and robbers such as Boston has never experienced before . . . It is unfortunate . . . Good reading, though, eh? . . . With a presidential year coming up?

3 BRUIN REGULARS RETURN

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 28 (AP)—Brown's varsity gridiron forces went through their final contact drill session of the season in preparation for their Thanksgiving Day test with Rutgers. The results of the drill, oddly enough were anything but satisfactory.

Despite a two-day rest from football work over the week-end the varsity squad showed a general lack of pep during a lengthy scrimmage against a reserve unit. The letdown, however, failed to cause any particular worry in the Bruin camp inasmuch as it was offset by the return of five "ex-units" to the drill squad.

Three of the top team wingmen, Nash, Rodgers and Bates, were back in action as were Stepezyk, back, and McNell, tackle, and all five showed no signs of the injuries or illness which had kept them inactive during the latter part of last week.

Charlie Blount, senior halfback, highlighted the drill with some of the fanciest running he has shown all fall. But for the most part blocking and other individual assignments were ragged. Today main emphasis is to be placed on those various assignment details in a dummy scrimmage session.

Undefeated Rutgers All Set for Brown

NEW BRUNSWICK, Nov. 28 (AP)—Rutgers' football team completed its last heavy workout in preparation for its season finale against Brown at Providence on this day.

Satisfied with the Scarlet's showing, Coach Harvey Harman planned a light drill today before his squad of 35 players entrains for Providence tomorrow morning.

They'll Do It Every Time

MECHANICS, TRADE CLASH TOMORROW

Mechanic Arts and Trade schools, with no titles flying around within reach with the exception of the mechanical title of the city ranks, will meet tomorrow afternoon in their yearly struggle for this honor at National League Field in a single game.

Mechanics, former favorites in the city pennant chase, should garner what consolation there may be left by a one-sided score.

Couch Dutch Holland's boys, after romping through their easy season opponents, suffered a setback through overconfidence at the hands of English to blow their championship hopes. But the Artisans quickly regained their winning stride and appear to be an easy victor over the mechanical rivals.

Gerry Cowhig, a formidable scholastic choice, will be leading the Holland offensive in this tilt as he has in the past and should prove a tough nut for the Trade line, hit with injuries, to stop.

HOOD MISSES LAST GAME
Coach Harry Tilton will wind up his season with little to look forward to. Joe Hood, tackle, has been lost for the past week with a broken collar bone and will not be in the lineup.

The Traders were rained out of their last start and unless they play inspired ball, stand small chance of budding or beating the powerful rival machine.

Coach Buzz Harvey's crew fulfilled, at least partially, the hopes of their coach that Saugus had one of the outstanding elevens in the state. The 3-0 score fails to tell the true margin the Sachems had over their Salem club.

Peabody and Gloucester, meeting this year in their annual Thanksgiving Day contest, will battle in just another ball game on the South Shore. Last season, both were undefeated and untied, clashing for the state title on this date.

Coach Tom O'Connor of Medford will readily tell you that Leo Beecy, his end, is one of the best wing-men in the schoolboy ranks this fall.

Wilmington high school, undefeated in seven starts, will risk its fine record against Tewksbury on Turkey Day. Elliot Melzar, fullback, has been the star of the team which boasts an entire veteran eleven.

Winthrop high alumni will hold a dance Thursday night at which the members of the starting team will be presented gold footballs. The entire squad has been invited.

Quincy high will hold huge weight advantage over its city rival, North Quincy, when the pair tangle Thursday. The Granite City Club will have close to 12-pounds to the player.

Hatlo MIDDIES CERTAIN---LARSON

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 28 (AP)—If mental attitude means anything, the Army-Navy game at Philadelphia Saturday is already stowed in the Navy's arsenal.

The talk was all "when" we beat Army, with never an "if" to concede the result is even in doubt. Despite five straight losses and a 9-9 tie, from mess attendant to admiral the Navy believes this is a Navy year—and only the Army game counts, anyway.

Couch Swede Larson said some of the regulars, even before an order for practice was posted, had asked to get out and get ready for Army. "Those boys aren't fooling," Larson said.

Army Team in Shape For Navy Contest

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 28 (AP)—Army's football team really got down to brass tacks today as the final week of practice for the Navy game began with a long defensive drill against Navy's passing attack. The Cadet backs faced every Navy passing formation the coaches had been able to show the junior varsity. Coach Bill Wood reported the team was in excellent physical condition.

As the backs worked on passes, the line showed a bucking machine around and held a brief assignment drill against another contingent of jayvees.

While no changes in the lineup are definitely scheduled, Wood is considering Carl Helmstedter for right end in place of Emory Adams.

BURMAN WINNER

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 28 (AP)—Clarence (Red) Burman, hometown heavyweight protégé of Jack Dempsey, took an easy 10-round decision from Al Boros of Bridgeport, Ct.

Last Call For All-Star Nominations

Fans will have to hurry their All-Scholastic nominations to the Boston Evening American-Daily Record eleven for the deadline is Saturday midnight, Dec. 2.

After that date, the Board of Coaches will go into their final conference of the year to select the first string team and the honorable intentions.

As in past years, there will be only one team with a limited list of boys who were foremost in the discussion for positions. The Board will present but 11 school players in announcing their official "all" team.

For the first time, the fans are invited to help in these selections. On this page, there is a coupon listing the positions to help in lining up your team. It is not necessary to use this blank. It is merely published for your convenience.

Some fans have been finding it especially hard to pick 11 outstanding players. To nominate a boy you don't have to pick an entire team. As a matter of fact, you may send the coupon with only one name and that boy will come under the Board's consideration.

This Board, made up of well-known high school coaches, includes Ed O'Brienberger, Boston English; Ed "Skip" Sherlock, Hyde Park; Harry Downes, Brookline; Bill Broderick, Salem; Fred Osterger, Arlington, and Jim Mansfield, Haverhill.

Numa to Settle In Boston

Leo Numa, former Black Seal and top challenger for the world's heavyweight wrestling title, he so certain he will win the title from Steve (Crusher) Casey when they meet tomorrow night at the Boston Arena that he announced he will take up a residence in Boston.

"I know that might sound a bit cocky. But the biggest wrestling crowds are drawn in the East and that's the place for a champion to wrestle. I've practically completed arrangements to live right here in Boston."

Numa is easily the hardest opponent Casey has met this year and there are those who say that Casey's lack of work against top raters recently will come back at him like a boomerang tomorrow night.

The semi-final will have Ben Shalom, 230-pound Jewish star, vs. Ernie Powers, rough-houser from Baltimore, while preliminaries include Jim Courtland vs. Charley Strack, Bull Martin vs. Jack Marshall and Luigi Bagcalupi vs. Gene Bowman.

All-Scholastic Eleven

Nominations will close Dec. 2 after which the Board of Coaches will pick the official "All" team.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

FRANK LEAHY has poise, a pleasant personality, good speaking ability and a thorough knowledge of football.

"The Holy Cross-Boston College game on Saturday will be interesting," said Leahy as his eyes twinkled and a smile played around his lips. "The back who told Joe Sheeketski that Holy Cross would win by a score of 25 to 0 is going to be proved to be very wrong."

Leahy laughingly added:

"Boston College will probably lose, but the game will be interesting. This will be especially so if my lads can maintain the same high spirit they showed against Kansas State."

It was agreed even by Joe Sheeketski, who also spoke at the luncheon of the Football Writers Association at the Parker House, that Boston College looked like a great football club against Kansas State. Sheeketski admitted he had called a special practice session after seeing Boston College in action, and that he is planning to spring some brand new plays against Boston College.

It was the opinion of coaches of other colleges that Holy Cross has a wealth of top football material, but that the improved Boston College football team has a chance to come through with a victory.

"Holy Cross will be carrying the burden in Saturday's game," said Leahy. "If we can win, we shall accomplish something worth while."

A week previous Dick Harlow had told the same gathering that every Harvard-Yale game was a toss-up, and that the fact Yale was on the short end of the betting gave it a better chance of winning.

"Yale will not have a mental hazard to overcome," said Dick, "while my young team may become nervous."

Harlow told Leahy and Sheeketski the Holy Cross-Boston College game should be a hard one, and he hoped the better team would win.

"I do not wish any of my Harvard players blamed for any mistakes that were made in the Yale game," said Harlow with spirit. "I take full responsibility for any mistakes."

This statement was typical of Harlow who has always tried to protect his young charges from personal criticism. Boys playing football for the fun of it should not be expected to be perfect. They should not be measured by the same standards that are set for the professional athlete.

Harlow has completely dispelled all thought he will not return to Harvard next Fall. Dick will start planning for the 1940 campaign after he has had a brief vacation.

Cleo O'Donnell Still Holy Cross Rooter

CLEO O'DONNELL, football coach at St. Anselm and former athletic director of Holy Cross, says he will be rooting for the Crusaders to win from Boston College on Saturday.

"I have seen Holy Cross play Louisiana and Providence this Fall," said Cleo. "Each time I dropped into Worcester there were persons who thought I should be elated at any setback received by Holy Cross."

"Such is not the case. I am a Holy Cross graduate, and am always rooting for the Crusaders to win. I personally like Joe Sheeketski, while I was always on friendly terms with Dr. Eddie Anderson when the latter was at Worcester."

"Football at St. Anselm's is much like it was when I first took over the athletic department at Holy Cross. We have still much to do."

"We do not pretend to be on the same football basis with Boston College which should always be able to defeat us. We won from Catholic University because that eleven is in another class. Playing against teams in our own field we did all right."

Lower Priced Seats All Sold Out

THE $1.10 AND $2.20 tickets for the Boston College-Holy Cross game have been all sold. There are still $3.30 tickets left. They are located behind the goal posts. It is expected that these tickets will be sold between now and game time.

It will be the largest crowd to see a Holy Cross-Boston College game in years. The Leahy influence is getting real results.

Leahy remembered Gil Dobie, and said that the success of the Boston College team is due to the fine training the seniors received under their former coach. Leahy asserted that the backbone of any football team are the seniors. Dobie has been living quietly in Newton. He has kept in close touch with the local football situation. Dobie is as willing as ever to discuss football plays and situations, but has tactfully avoided making any statements in regard to the Boston College eleven.

The winner of the Holy Cross-Boston College game is hopeful of getting a bid for the Cotton Bowl or the Orange Bowl.

Leo Numa, who used to be a pretty good college football player, will arrive in Boston tonight ready for his world's championship mat bout with Steve Casey at the Arena tomorrow night. Numa has plenty of supporters here who feel he will make things interesting for Casey.

Coonan Comes Off Floor To Defeat Chludinski

Gamster Herbie Coonan of Up-State Rochdale came up off the floor, on the verge of defeat, to pull out an awe-inspiring heavyweight final over massive Frank Chludinski of Hyde Park in the final and feature bout of the third of four eliminations in the annual American-Record New England All-America amateur boxing championships at Boston Arena.

Every one of the more than 500 fans waited for the smashing finale, thirty-third bout in one of the most spectacular ring shows in modern "pure" annals. The Irish-American A. A. co-operated with the American-Record in conducting the show.

Coonan entered the ring with the New England A. A. U. title dangling from his belt, Chludinski as a former All-America New England champion.

The latter had been extended to the limit in the trials to stave off the challenge of courageous Peter Zollo, Rhode Island's Golden Glove champion, from Pawtucket.

Zollo, tough, rugged and willing took plenty of punishment from his Hyde Park opponent, but weathered the storm and at the final bell landed a telling uppercut which had the local giant groggy.

Chludinski disposed of Joe Santomasi of Lawrence in a quick first round order in the semi-finals, while Coonan was pulling out a three round decision over the surprising Kenneth Jason of Cohasset.

COONAN WINS FIRST ROUND

Came the final with Coonan taking the opening round after hefty exchange to head and body.

In the second Big Frank opened a cut under Coonan's eye, staggered the Rochdale boy with a clubbing left to the head and then floored him for the count of nine with a terrific right to the stomach.

Again Coonan was belted to the canvas for the count, with the bell saving him from complete annihilation.

Coonan etched a gallant comeback in the final frame, getting far the better of a punchfest with clean hammer-like blows and bruising uppercuts which wore down his heavier opponent as the crowd rent the arena rafters. Coonan was awarded a split decision, getting the vote of one of the two judges and the referee.

15 K. O.'S IN JOUST

Fifteen knockouts featured the brilliant pageant of flying fists which added to the 35 k.o.'s of the two previous tryout shows comprises a staggering total of 50 in all. Fourth and final test qualifying winners for the New England All-America championship finals to be held at Boston Garden on Monday, Dec. 11th, comes next Monday night at the Arena.

Al "Red" Priest of Cambridge shot into the title finals with a deadly performance over Jimmy Taylor, good-looking blond boy from Lowell. Taylor stayed in the heavy going all the way without asking quarter. But Priest was at his best, punching with a six-fisted attack which inflicted deadly damage and cutting his opponent to ribbons.

Colored Abel Goncalves of Pawtucket boasted the cleaner and harder punches to survive in the 175-pound division, with Johnny Grimes, Boston Negro, taking the short end.

CONLEY FAILS

South Boston's popular Paul Conley was belted into submission in the 160-pound final, falling in his All-America comeback quest. Rough and tough Larry Facino of Roxbury tore into the Romanian with a bewildering first round attack, shodding rights and lefts to the head which had Conley down first for the count of nine and then completely out.

Jackie Hurd of Boston won all the way from Charlie Driscoll, his South Boston white opponent, in the 126-pound final. Driscoll's belated third round attack falling far short of victory.

Harold Harris, Malden newcomer to All-America contention, showed to fine semi-final advantage over Manchester's Ray Fournier and then made short work of disposing of Roslindale's Frank Armano within 30 seconds of the first round of the final, a right to the jaw ending it.

Joe & Asbestos

By KEN KLING

Asbestos pushed his roll up to $133 yesterday when he cashed his bet on Knights Sox. Today's horse goes at Bowie. It is Hilda 1-12-18. Owing to a large field, we bet conservatively $3 win and $3 third.

White Hope

Wilson's Best

By DAVE WILSON

BEST BET—WHITE HOPE IN FIRST RACE
BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 28—White Hope has been burning up this strip in morning spins and if he can run to those works in the initial stanza here today it will be all over but the shouting.

The son of Pilate ran a very creditable fourth in his final essay at Empire City over the same distance. That heat was run against maidens of the $2500 variety.

ROOM AND BOARD By Eugene Ahern

Boston Drops Two Games to Brooklyn

The Boston indoor baseball club made their debut before some 4000 fans last night at the Boston Garden and lost both ends of a double header to Brooklyn, 4 to 3 and 8 to 0.

The speed of the game was a revelation to the fans that witnessed the fray. This was due partly to the short distance of 60 feet to the bases instead of the 90 feet used in the outdoor game.

The first game was a nine-inning thriller with the visitors winning 4 to 3, thanks largely to a home run into the centerfield stands by Leftfielder Nick Krevet.

The nightcap, a seven-inning affair which dragged, saw "Dutch" Leonard, as effective as his Dodger namesake, whitewash Freddie McGuire's natives with four hits while the Flatbush flailers were pounding three Boston boxmen to win, 8 to 0.

The opener was a pitching duel between Boston's Len Hubbard and Brooklyn's Ray Bartlett, the hill ace of the rivals. Bartlett fanned ten and walked seven and was guilty of a couple of wild pitches. Hubbard whiffed six and walked only two. Each yielded nine hits.

The Brooklyn was steadier in the field in both tilts.

The Bostonians had the tying and winning runs on second and third with only one out in the ninth of the opener but Bartlett pulled out of the hole.

Jacobs, Druxman Renew Feud

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 27 (INS)—Aroused by reports that Promoter Mike Jacobs of New York will dangle an enticing offer before middleweight champion Al Hostak, Promoter Nate Druxman of Seattle will leave a sick bed today to accompany Hostak to Cleveland, O., for his fight with Erik Seelig on a charity card.

"I don't trust that guy Jacobs. He's a smooth worker and I want to be on hand when he starts making offers to Hostak," said Druxman, who has an unwritten agreement with Eddie Marino, Hostak's manager, covering the fighter's services.
